The Black Church and Hip Hop Culture Emmett G. Discourse and Ideology Craig Martin, 2021-11-18 Drawing on poststructuralist approaches Craig Martin outlines a theory of discourse ideology and domination that can be used by scholars and students to understand these central elements in the study of culture The book shows how discourses are used to construct social institutions often classist sexist or racist and that those social institutions always entail a distribution of resources and capital in ways that capacitate some subject positions over others Such asymmetrical power relations are often obscured by ideologies that offer demonstrably false accounts of why those asymmetries exist or persist The author provides a method of reading in order to bring matters into relief and the last chapter provides a case study that applies his theory and method to racist ideologies in the United States which systematically function to discourage white Americans from sympathizing with poor African Americans thereby contributing to reinforcing the latter's place at the bottom of a racial hierarchy that has always existed in the US

Tait, 2001 Does the Information Age promise egalitarianism and democracy or will it simply reinforce long standing social and economic inequalities This collection of essays analyzes the emerging role of African Americans in post industrial society from a variety of communications research perspectives

Accepting W J Wilson's theory of a socially and economically isolated African American underclass Barber and Tait ask the logical question what next

The Information Society and the Black Community is a critical examination of the prospects and pitfalls of a historically disadvantaged group in a period of rapid technological advances and economic growth

Adopting Frank Webster's theory of the Information Society as a framework for organization and development the book is divided into five sections that look at technological economic occupational spatial and cultural aspects of the relationship between the African American community and the Information Society

Part One analyzes data on African American use of information technology and examines how the new flow of information might effect African American social and cultural images

Part Two focuses on African American participation in the ownership and control of information industries

Part Three treats professional training and employment patterns affecting African Americans in the Information Age

Part Four centers around the potential uses of information technology in solving social political and economic problems
