Talking Walking Rachel Bowlby, 2018-02-16 When something called theory first broke onto the seemingly stagnant scene of literary studies it offered bright new ways and fields for critical reading new methods and subjects and also new words to speak them The syllabus and the styles would never be the same and reading was proudly claimed as a mode of social critique The short pieces brought together in Talking Walking engage with all sorts of arguments then now and earlier about the uses and history of critical reading of literature and also of other cultural forms There is much on the changing styles of literary critical writing and on the place of particular writers Virginia Woolf or Jacques Derrida in contemporary critical culture There are pieces on clichés on footnotes on the language of the university job interview on the use of domesticated as a catch all negative term There are also essays on cultural questions informed by critical theory For instance why has the topic of walking been such a fruitful thinking theme in literature and philosophy How does the history of shopping and marketing theory intersect with those of literature and subjectivity How in the light of reproductive technologies and new social forms has becoming a parent turned into a culturally prominent kind of story These are some of the questions that arise in the interview and essays that make up Rachel Bowlby's book which derives from several decades of working and writing and talking and walking within the changing contemporary landscape of literary and critical studies Old and new arrivals into this world will find pleasures of reading and matter for thinking on every page Indianapolis Monthly, 2006-09 Indianapolis Monthly is the Circle City's essential chronicle and guide an indispensable authority on what's new and what's news Through coverage of politics crime dining style business sports and arts and entertainment each issue offers compelling narrative stories and lively urbane coverage of Indy's cultural landscape The Health Reformer, 1871
