was shown for the first time in the design of a vaccine against Neisseria meningitidis that is now in phase III clinical trials In addition different computational tools allow the determination of crucial genes through comparative analyses between different pathogenic strains Alternatively carbohydrates have been considered as key targets in developing safe and effective vaccines to combat cancer bacterial and viral infections Tumor associated carbohydrate antigens can be coupled covalently to protein carriers to target MHC receptors and improve immunogenicity and have reached already pre clinical and clinical studies In light of the recent availability of genomic tools we believe that in the near future an increasing number of vaccine candidates composed of defined epitopes will be available for synthetic vaccines showing improved protection
