Middle Range Theory for Nursing is a textbook designed for theory and research courses in master's and doctoral programs. As described in the 2d edition of the Encyclopedia of Nursing Research, middle range theory is a basic usable structure of ideas less abstract than grand theory and more abstract than empirical generalizations or micro range theory. Middle range theories are developed and grown at the intersection of practice and research to provide guidance for everyday practice and scholarly research rooted in the discipline of nursing. In this revised and updated second edition, the authors will revise the eight theories that were examined in the first edition with published research and practice updates along with any changes in the basic concepts and models. Seven new theories will be added. Each theory is presented by the theorist in a consistent format: purpose of the theory, basic concepts, relationships among the concepts, the model, use of the theory in nursing research and/or practice, conclusions, references.

Theories new to the second edition: Symptom Management (Dodd et al), Caring (Swanson), Embodied Language (Liehr et al), Cultural Self-reliance (Lowe), Caregiver Stress (Tsai), Clinical Decision Making (Chase), Moral Reckoning (Nathaniel).

Theoretical Nursing Afaf Ibrahim Meleis, 2007. This text guides you through the evolution of nursing's theoretical foundations and examines the ways in which these principles influence the practice of the discipline.

Jacket: Encyclopedia of Nursing Research Joyce J. Fitzpatrick, Meredith Wallace (PhD, RN.), 2006. From the world's leading authorities in nursing research, this thoroughly updated 2nd Edition of the Encyclopedia of Nursing Research presents key terms and concepts in nursing research comprehensively explained by over 200 expert contributors.

Theoretical Nursing Afaf Ibrahim Meleis, 2011. An additional assumption was that the processes for theory development were new to nursing and hence nurses in graduate programs learned strategies for advancing knowledge from other disciplines. This assumption was debunked with the knowledge that nurses were always engaged in knowledge development driven by their experiences in clinical practice. Because of these assumptions, most of the early writing about theory development was about outlining strategies that should be used rather than strategies that have already been used in the discipline to develop theories. Theorists themselves did not uncover or adequately discuss ways by which they developed their theories; therefore, the tendency was to describe processes that were based on theories developed in other disciplines, mainly the physical and social sciences. And an implicit assumption was made that there should be a single strategy for theory development, some claiming to begin the process from practice and others believing it should be driven by research.
