What U.S. Middle School Students Bring to Global Education Hiromitsu Inokuchi, Yoshiko Nozaki, 2010-01-01 What kinds of discourses on a foreign country do young people in the United States bring to global studies classrooms What does it mean for them to engage in a series of discourses in terms of their identity formations when these discourses represent a particular kind of worldview How should teachers deal with the tendency of the students to see foreign nations as the other How can educational researchers study such discourses and the operation of othering at the level of everyday lives in schools This volume answers these questions by critically examining the meanings of Japan for U.S. middle school students and the formation of their identities vis-à-vis Japan Employing ethnographic micro-sociological and discourse analytic perspectives and methodologies it approaches the problem of othering by analyzing what the students bring to classroom i.e. discourses student voices and various uses of language that shape students views on Japan themselves and the world outside them

The Architecture of European Codes and Contract Law Stefan Grundmann, Martin Schauer, 2006-01-01 The nineteen outstanding contributors to this deeply insightful book concur in envisioning a fundamentally new systematic concept of contract law that while preserving the essential and architecture and of the existing European codes would nonetheless find cogent ways to integrate such modern developments as mass transactions chains and networks of contracts regulation of markets and contracts to protect consumers and service and long term contracts into an optional European code The book is organised along three major avenues and the systematic arrangement of a contract law code how it deals with core questions of formation and performance or breach of contract such as mistake and misrepresentation standard contract terms and remedies in the case of breach of contract and the apparent necessity to merge consumer contract law i e such issues as product safety and liability warranties and consumer debt and insolvency with traditional core contract law concepts and and the importance to substantive contract law of the pre contractual phase in which information duties are becoming steadily more paramount The authors perspectives cover a wide range of jurisdictions including new EU Member States The book and s commitment to an integration of comparative law EC law and the debate on European codification offers practitioners and academics fertile ground for the development of a new model of contract law that is more than a common denominator of what has been in force so far This model may serve as a basis for Europe wide and perhaps even worldwide discussion underrepresentation of Romance languages in scientific publications related to forensic work the chapters in this handbook will also explore the reasons behind this unfortunate situation Designed to engage readers whether they are linguists legal professionals or simply interested individuals and to spark interest in Romance Forensic Linguistics this handbook follows three key objectives First we are committed to providing a comprehensive overview of the casework and research conducted in and on several Romance languages including Peninsular Spanish Catalan Brazilian Portuguese French Canadian French Italian and Romanian Second the chapters in this volume seek to understand why Forensic Linguistics has thrived more in some Romance speaking countries than in others Finally we aim to uncover the reasons for the slower development of Forensic Linguistics in regions where Romance languages are predominantly spoken
