an Undergoverned World William Durch, Joris Larik, Richard Ponzio, 2018-01-10 Just Security in an Undergoverned World examines how humankind can manage global problems to achieve both security and justice in an age of antithesis Global connectivity is increasing visibly and invisibly in trade finance culture and information helping to spur economic growth technological advance and greater understanding and freedom but global disconnects are growing as well Ubiquitous electronics rely on high value minerals scraped from the earth by miners kept poor by corruption and war People abandon burning states for the often indifferent welcome of wealthier lands whose people in turn draw into themselves Humanity's very success underwritten in large part by lighting up gigatons of long buried carbon for 200 years now threatens humanity's future The global governance institutions established after World War II to manage global threats especially the twin scourges of war and poverty have expanded in reach and impact while paradoxically losing the political support of some of their wealthiest and most powerful members Their problems mimic those of their members in struggling to adapt to new problems and maintain trust in norms and public bodies This volume argues however that a properly mandated managed and modernized global architecture offers unparalleled potential to midwife solutions to intractable issues from violent conflict and climate change to poverty and pandemic disease that transcend borders and the capacities of individual actors It offers just security as a new framework for charting innovating solutions and strategies for effective and essential global governance

Reforming the United Nations Joachim Müller, 2021-05-25 Reforming the United Nations Fit for Purpose at 75 examines the efforts of Secretary General António Guterres to improve the aging organisation during 2017-2019 On development the global network was repositioned better to assist countries On peace and security the Secretariat was reorganised with a focus on conflict prevention On management the paradigm centred on decentralisation and accountability Other priorities addressed sexual exploitation in peacekeeping and gender parity The detail analysis of the reform process highlights the positions of the United States Russia China the Group of 77 and the European Union Official records are used The Guterres reform was respectable by improving efficiency and effectiveness Reform proposals did not however address fundamental problems including Security Council reform

On Building Peace Michael von der Schulenburg, 2017-07-07 Now 25 years after the end of the Cold War the global peace order is going through renewed geopolitical changes that are less dramatic than those in 1989 but probably equally important The post Cold War Western dominance of global affairs and the singular US superpower status are eroding making room for a more diffuse multi polar world with many different global and regional players Post Cold War hopes that the winning political system of liberal democracy would spread around the world and bring global peace have turned out an illusion To the contrary Western efforts and military interventions to promote liberal democracy have increasingly resulted in the destabilization of countries and whole regions At the same time intra state armed conflicts have probably for the first time in human history replaced inter state wars as the main threats to global peace and security This has created a completely new global threat scenario Now weak and corrupt governments are challenged by powerful belligerent non state actors be they Islamic extremist groups other ideologically motivated groups separatist movements or even transnational crime syndicates Globalization has turned these local intra state armed conflicts into international security concerns Peacebuilding Rob Jenkins,2013 The emergence of The United Nations Peacebuilding Commission PBC in 2005 was the culmination of a long and contentious process In this work Rob Jenkins provides a concise introduction that traces the origins and evolution of peacebuilding as a concept the creation and functioning of the PBC as an institution and the complicated relationship between these two processes Jenkins discusses how continued contestation over what exactly peacebuilding is and how its objectives can most effectively be achieved influenced the institutional design and de facto functioning of the PBC its structure mandate and origins He then moves on to examine the peacebuilding architecture in action and analyses the role that the PBC has carved out for itself reflecting on the future prospects for the organization The theory and practice of peacebuilding has assumed increasing importance over the last decade and this work is essential reading for all students of conflict resolution peace studies and international relations

Intrusive Impartiality Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science Marion Laurence,2024-11-29 Impartiality is a central norm in United Nations peace operations that has long been associated with passive monitoring of cease fires and peace agreements In the twenty first century however its meaning has been stretched to allow for a range of forceful intrusive and ideologically prescriptive practices In Intrusive Impartiality Marion Laurence explains how these new ways of being impartial emerge how they spread within and across missions and how they become institutionalized across UN peace operations In doing so Laurence sheds light on controversial changes in peacekeeping practice and provides an innovative framework for studying authority and change in global governance The Electrical Journal ,1891 Protecting the Privacy of Social Security Numbers and Preventing Identity Theft United States. Congress. House. Committee on Ways and Means. Subcommittee on Social Security,2002 TID. ,1957 Human Development and Global Institutions Richard Ponzio,Arunabha Ghosh,2016-02-05 This book provides a timely and accessible introduction to the foundational ideas associated with the human development school of thought It examines its conceptual evolution during the post colonial era and discusses how various institutions of the UN system have tried to engage with this issue both in terms of intellectual and technical advance and operationally Showing that human development has had a profound impact on shaping the policy agenda and programming priorities of global institutions it argues that human development has helped to preserve the continued vitality of major multilateral development programs funds and agencies It also details how human development faces new risks and threats caused by political economic social and environmental forces which are highlighted in a series of engaging case studies on trade water energy the environment democracy human rights and peacebuilding The book also makes the case for why human development remains relevant in an increasingly globalized world while asking whether global institutions will be able to sustain political and moral support from their member states and powerful non state actors

It argues that fresh new perspectives on human development are now urgently needed to fill critical gaps across borders and entire regions A positive forward looking agenda for the future of global governance would have to engage with new issues such as the Sustainable Development Goals energy transitions resource scarcity and expansion of democratic governance within and between nations Redefining the overall nature and specific characteristics of what constitutes human progress in an increasingly integrated and interdependent world this book serves as a primer for scholars and graduate students of international relations and development It is also relevant to scholars of economics political science history sociology and women s studies

State Formation After Civil War Derek M Powell, 2016-08-05 State formation after civil war offers a new model for studying the formation of the state in a national peace transition as an integrated national phenomenon Current models of peacebuilding and state building limit that possibility reproducing a fragmented selective view of this complex reality Placing too much emphasis on state building as design they place too little on understanding state formation as unplanned historical process The dominant focus on national institutions also ignores the role that cities and civic polities have played in constituting the modern state Mining ideas from many disciplines and evidence from 19 peace processes including South Africa the book argues that the starting point for building a systematic theory is to explain a distinct pattern to state formation that can be observed in practice Despite their conflicts people in fragile societies bargain terms for peaceful coexistence they make attempts to constitute the right to rule as valid state authority in circumstances prone to conflict over which they have imperfect influence not control Though the kind of institutions created will differ with context how rules for state authority are institutionalized follows a consistent basic pattern That pattern defines state formation in peace transitions as both a unified if contingent field of normative practice and an object of comparative study Where the national centric models see local government as a matter belonging to policy on decentralization for later in the reconstruction phase the book uncovers a distinct local government dimension to peace transitions A civic dimension to national conflicts that must be explained incipient or proto local authorities that emerge even during civil war in peace making after state collapse the fact that it is common for peace agreements and constitutions to include rules for local authority for local elections to be held as part of broader democratization and for laws to be enacted to establish local government as part of peace compacts The book develops the concept of local peace transition to explain the distinctive constitutive role of this local dimension in peace making and state formation This path breaking book will be of compelling interest to practitioners scholars and students of comparative constitutional studies international law peace building and state building
