Neural Transplantation In Neurodegenerative Disease Current Status And New Directions No 231:

Neural Transplantation in Neurodegenerative Disease Derek J. Chadwick, Jamie A. Goode, 2003-10-31 The field of neural transplantation is at a crucial stage with important clinical trials on transplantation in patients with Parkinson's disease nearing completion and novel alternative approaches to fetal transplantation being developed This timely book brings together leading neuroscientists clinicians and cell and developmental biologists to discuss the use of neural transplants in neurodegenerative disorders such as Parkinson's disease Huntington's chorea amyotrophic lateral sclerosis multiple sclerosis and spinal cord injury There is also extensive coverage of the potential alternatives to freshly derived fetal tissue as the source of transplants for example xenografts encapsulated cells and immortalized stem cells With authoritative contributions and lively discussion sections this book presents much new and exciting work in this field and identifies promising new research directions

The New Brain Sciences Dai Rees, Steven Rose, 2004-10-21 The last 20 years have seen an explosion of research and development in the neurosciences Indeed some have called this first decade of the 21st century the decade of the mind An all encompassing term the neurosciences cover such fields as biology psychology neurology psychiatry and philosophy and include anatomy physiology molecular biology genetics and behaviour It is now a major industry with billions of dollars of funding invested from both public and private sectors Huge progress has been made in our understanding of the brain and its functions However with progress comes controversy responsibility and dilemma The New Brain Sciences Perils and Prospects examines the implications of recent discoveries in terms of our sense of individual responsibility and personhood With contributing chapters from respected and influential names in neuroscience law psychology philosophy and sociology The New Brain Sciences should kick start a discussion of where neuroscience is headed Purinergic Signalling in Neuron-Glia Interactions Derek J. Chadwick, Jamie A. Goode, 2006-05-01 ATP the intracellular energy source is also an extremely important cell cell signalling molecule for a wide variety of cells across evolutionarily diverse organisms The extracellular biochemistry of ATP and its derivatives is complex and the multiple membrane receptors that it activates are linked to many intracellular signalling systems Purinergic signalling affects a diverse range of cellular phenomena including ion channel function cytoskeletal dynamics gene expression secretion cell proliferation differentiation and cell death Recently this class of signalling molecules and receptors has been found to mediate communication between neurons and non neuronal cells glia in the central and peripheral nervous systems Glia are critical for normal brain function development and response to injury Neural impulse activity is detected by glia and purinergic signalling is emerging as a major means of integrating functional activity between neurons glia and vascular cells in the nervous system These interactions mediate effects of neural activity on the development of the nervous system and in association with injury neurodegeneration myelination and cancer Bringing together contributions from experts in diverse fields including glial biologists neurobiologists and specialists in purinergic receptor structure and pharmacology this book considers how extracellular ATP acts to integrate communication between different types of glia and between neurons and glia Beginning with an overview of glia and purinergic signalling it contains detailed coverage of purine release receptors and reagents purinergic signalling in the neural control of glial development glial involvement in information processing and discussion of the interactions between neurons and microglia Index Medicus ,2001 Index of Conference Proceedings British Library.
