Meeting Community Needs Practical Librarians:

Meeting Community Needs Pamela H. MacKellar, 2015-12-15 Librarians must know how to provide essential programs and services that make a difference for the people they serve if libraries are going to survive. It is no longer realistic for librarians to rely on the idea that people love libraries so they will fund them in this economic climate. Librarians must be able to prove that their programs and services are making a difference if they want to compete for funding in their municipalities, schools, corporations, colleges, institutions, and organizations. Meeting Community Needs: A Practical Guide for Librarians presents a process that librarians of all kinds can use to provide effective programs and services. This requires being in close touch with your community, whether it is a city, town, or village, college or university, public or private school, or corporation, hospital, or business. Understanding what information people need, how they access it, how they use it, how it benefits them, and how they share it is paramount. The process in this book covers community assessment, designing programs and services to meet needs, implementing and evaluating programs and services, and funding options. Providing library programs and services for your entire population, not just library users, is more important than ever. Librarians working in libraries of all types must provide programs and services that meet community needs if libraries are to stay relevant and survive in the long run. Librarians must be able to measure their success and demonstrate the library's worth with verifiable proof if they are going to be competitive for available funds in the future. Meeting Community Needs will make you take a serious look at how well your library programs and services are meeting your community's needs, and it will show you the way to success.

Developing Community-Led Public Libraries John Pateman, Ken Williment, 2016-04-22 This important book examines the potential for a new community-led service model in public libraries. Using theoretical approaches to working with socially excluded community members, with a direct application of those approaches in Canadian public libraries, the authors offer a powerful and persuasive case for adopting the community-led approach in libraries worldwide. The book showcases good practice and outlines the challenges to community development work. With public libraries facing budget cuts, this book offers an alternative way forward based on a community-led approach to developing needs-based library services. This book makes a unique contribution to public library thinking and policy, synthesising the outcomes of research and best practice at the cutting edge of library service delivery, and will be essential reading for all those researching and working in the public library sector.

Transforming Libraries, Building Communities Julie Biando Edwards, Melissa S. Robinson, Kelley Rae Unger, 2013-05-30 This book is for those moving their library beyond places to find information. Written by practicing public librarians and an academic librarian with an interest in public libraries, the book focuses on how public libraries can become more community-centered and, by doing so, how they can transform both themselves and their communities. The authors argue that focusing on building community through innovative and responsive services and programs will be the best way for the public library to reposition itself in the years to come. Repositioning the library acknowledges that information is in abundance in contemporary life And while accessing information will always be at the heart of what libraries do it isn t the only thing they do It may not be in the future even the most important thing that they do This book encourages librarians to admit that our role has evolved and to reframe the discussion so that it is about what we actually can do play an essential role in meeting community needs and building strong and vibrant local communities The authors argue that repositioning libraries as community centered institutions is a responsibility Libraries bring people together They create community and they also create mini communities everything from book groups to writing circles to new citizen groups to linguistic or ethnic communities reflected in programming and in collections These mini communities help provide fellowship and foster relationships amongst the group members but also because they exist in the public place that is the library help the larger community recognize and learn about the mini communities that create the larger community This is the work of libraries The book is divided into three parts which include explorations into the importance of the community centered library practical advice on making your library more community centered and a showcase of community centered library programs services and initiatives across the United States A special focus of the book is on how community development literature and practice can inform librarianship with an emphasis on Asset Based Community Development principles The book looks at how community centered libraries build individual and community assets and how in doing so they serve as essential community anchors and institutions

Integrating Video Game Research and Practice in Library and Information Science Ratliff, Jacob A., 2015-02-28

Video games are now a ubiquitous form of media used by the majority of the American population. However, the academic research field surrounding this genre does not accurately reflect the pervasive influence of video games. The field of library and information sciences helps provide the necessary foundational support for this media. Integrating Video Game Research and Practice in Library and Information Science brings together video gaming culture and its unique forms of communication with information behavior research. By detailing the nuances of video games and their influence, this reference book reveals communication patterns within society and provides comprehensive background and analysis for libraries, librarians, and information professionals.

Serving Library Users from Asia John Hickok, 2019-06-12 Asian populations are among some of the fastest growing cultural groups in the US. While books on serving other target groups in libraries have been published (e.g., disabled, Latino seniors, etc.), few books on serving library users of Asian heritage have been written. Thus, the timely need for this book. Rather than a generalized overview of Asians as a whole, this book has 24 separate chapters, each on 24 specific Asian countries, cultures of East, Southeast, and South Asia, with a wealth of resources for understanding, interacting with, and serving library users of each culture. Resources include cultural guides, both print and online, language helps, sample library vocabulary, Asian booksellers, nationwide cultural groups, professional literature, and more. Resources and suggestions are given for all three types of libraries: public, school, and academic, making this book valuable for all librarians. The demographics of each Asian culture, numbers, and distribution, plus history of immigration and international student enrollment, is also featured. As a bonus, each chapter spotlights a US public school and academic library providing model outreach to Asian library users. Additionally, this book provides a detailed description and analysis of libraries in each of the 24 Asian countries. The history, development, facilities, conditions, technology, classification systems, and more of public, school, and academic libraries are all discussed with detailed documentation. Country conditions influencing libraries and library use are also described. Literacy levels, reading cultures, languages, and writing systems, educational systems, and more. Based on the author's 15 years of research and travels to Asia, this work is a must-have for all librarians.

Linking Theory and Practice of Digital Libraries Gerd Berget, Mark Michael Hall, Daniel Brenn, Sanna Kumpulainen, 2021-09-06 This book constitutes the proceedings of the 25th International Conference on Theory and Practice of Digital Libraries (TPDL 2021) held in September 2021. Due to the COVID-10 pandemic, the conference was held virtually. The 10 full papers, 3 short papers, and 13 other papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 53 submissions. TPDL 2021 attempts to facilitate establishing connections and convergences between diverse research communities such as Digital Humanities, Information Sciences, and others that could benefit from ecosystems offered by digital libraries and repositories. This edition of TPDL was held under the general theme of Linking Theory and Practice. The papers are organized in topical sections as follows: Document and Text Analysis, Data Repositories and Archives, Linked Data and Open Data, User Interfaces and Experience.
