

Motivation: the process by which activities are started, directed and continued so that physical or psychological needs/ wants are met.

- Extrinsic motivation: a person performs an action because it leads to an outcome that is separate from the person (ex, a kid is motivated to get good grades because their parents give them 10 dollars for every A)
- Intrinsic motivation: a person performs an action because the act itself is rewarding. (ex, a kid is motivated to get good grades because they enjoy showing their knowledge.)

Instincts: biologically determined and innate patterns of behavior.

→ hereditary factors can account for more than 50% of variance in some aspects of cognition, temperament and personality.

Need: a requirement that is essential for survival

Drive: the psychological tension and physical arousal that motivates an organism to act to fulfill a need.

Drive-Reduction Theory:

- 2 kinds of drives exist: primary drives, involving survival needs such as hunger and thirst, and acquired (secondary) drives which are learned through experience or conditioning, such as the need for money or social approval.
- When there is a primary drive need, the body is in a state of imbalance
- This stimulates behavior to restore homeostasis, causing the person to act in order to reduce the drive.

McClelland's Theory:

→ three types of psychological needs:

1. Need for affiliation: a need for friendly social interactions and relationships, desire to be liked by others and held in high regard by those around us.
2. Need for power: a need for influence and impact; not about reaching goals as much as having control.
3. Need for achievement: a need to succeed in attaining not only realistic but challenging goals, as well as a desire for feedback about one's performance.

Carol Dweck's Self-Theory of Motivation:

- People's "theories" about themselves (their perception of their abilities and relationships) affect their level of achievement motivation and willingness to keep working towards success in the face of failure
- People who believe that intelligence is fixed and unchangeable have an external locus of control and give up quickly when they fail
- People who believe that intelligence is changeable and can be shaped by experience and effort have an internal locus of control and persevere through challenges.
- "Fixed" vs "growth" mindset.

Stimulus motive: an unlearned motive that increases stimulation, such as curiosity, playing and exploration.

Arousal Theory:

Study Guide and Workbook to Accompany Zimbardo and Weber's Psychology, Second Edition Peter C. Gram, Philip G. Zimbardo, 1997 Psychology Third Edition builds upon the experience and reputations of Phil Zimbardo and Ann Weber with the addition of a new co author Bob Johnson who has a wealth of teaching experience at the community college level This briefer less expensive book presents psychology in a meaningful manageable format that focuses on the key questions and core concepts of psychology Introductory psychology covers such a wide range of topics and issues that it becomes difficult for readers to see the forest for the trees To make key psychological concepts more meaningful the authors found inspiration in a classic chess study This study showed that experts did no better than novices at remembering the location of pieces on a chess board when they were placed randomly Only when the patterns represented actual game situations did they make sense and therefore become more easily memorable for the experts Clearly meaningful patterns are easier to remember and understand than random arrangements and Psychology applies this by presenting the field of psychology in meaningful patterns to enhance comprehension These concepts are then applied to readers own lives study skills and the world around them Finally Psychology integrates a cross cultural and multicultural perspective to make psychology meaningful for everyone For anyone interested in Introductory Psychology Changing the Conversation about Higher Education
