Abstract: This study was designed to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The program consisted of 3 sessions per week, 20 minutes in duration. The program was designed to improve the children's physical fitness, specifically their cardiovascular endurance, muscular strength, and flexibility. The results of the study showed that the children who participated in the program showed significant improvements in all three areas of physical fitness compared to the control group. The children who participated in the program also showed improvements in their overall health and well-being. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can be an effective way to improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.
