Audience Transformations Nico Carpentier, Kim Christian Schröder, Lawrie Hallett, 2013-07-31 The concept of the audience is changing. In the twenty-first century, there are novel configurations of user practices and technological capabilities that are altering the way we understand and trust media organizations and representations, how we participate in society, and how we construct our social relations. This book embeds these transformations in a societal, cultural, technological, ideological, economic, and historical context, avoiding a naive privileging of technology as the main societal driving force but also avoiding the media-centric reduction of society to the audiences that are situated within. Audience Transformations provides a platform for a nuanced and careful analysis of the main changes in European communicational practices and their social, cultural, and technological affordances.

Cyberpsychology and New Media Andrew Power, Grainne Kirwan, 2013-10-01 Cyberpsychology is the study of human interactions with the internet, mobile computing, and telephony, games, consoles, virtual reality, artificial intelligence, and other contemporary electronic technologies. The field has grown substantially over the past few years, and this book surveys how researchers are tackling the impact of new technology on human behaviour and how people interact with this technology. Examining topics as diverse as online dating, social networking, online communications, artificial intelligence, health information seeking, behaviour, education, online therapies, and cybercrime, Cyberpsychology and New Media provides an in-depth overview of this burgeoning field and allows those with little previous knowledge to gain an appreciation of the diversity of the research being undertaken in the area. Arranged thematically and structured for accessibility, Cyberpsychology and New Media will be essential reading for researchers and students in Social Psychology, Cyberpsychology, and in Communication and Media Studies.
