Disability, Human Rights and Education Felicity Armstrong, Len Barton, 1999-10-16. This book recognizes the importance of an informed cross-cultural understanding of the policies and practices of different societies within the field of disability, human rights, and education. It represents an attempt to critically engage with issues arising from the historical and contemporary domination of portrayals of the western as advanced, democratic, and exemplary, in contrast to the construction of the rest of the world as backward primitive and inferior in these fundamental areas How human rights are understood in different contexts is a key theme in this book Importantly some contributors raise questions about the value of a human rights model across all societies Other contributors see the struggle for human rights as at the heart of the struggle for an inclusive society The implications for education arising from this debate are identified and a series of questions are raised by each author for further reflection and discussion as well as providing a stimulus for developing future research Disability Human Rights and Education is recommended reading for students and researchers interested in Disability Studies inclusive education and social policy It is also directly relevant to professionals and policy makers in the field seeking a greater understanding of cross cultural perspectives The Lutheran Witness ,1960 The Australian Jurist ,1871
