VC/CV Closed Syllables

CONCEPTS COVERED

- Syllable
- Closed Syllable (VC)
- Silent Sound
- Decoded and Undecoded Syllables
- VC/CV Syllable Rule
- Double Middle Consonant Spelling Rule

Step 1

Work with One-Syllable Words and Word Parts

Ask students that they will be learning about different types of syllables. Ask if a syllable is a group of letters that form a single sound. A syllable can be a word or part of a word. The words stop, stop, stop, and I am one-syllable words. Other examples of syllables that are not words are up, fish, and job.

Reading

ORAL/WRIT Students will correctly identify, pronounce, and read VC words and syllables.

Practice Page 2a

- Tell students that one kind of syllable is called a closed syllable. There are three things to remember about a closed syllable:
 1. It has only one sound.
 2. The vowel has a short sound.
 3. It ends in a consonant.
- Show the short vowel sounds with students by reciting CVC or VC/CV words as in 1a. It is important to do this step for words with CVC.
- Then display the closed-syllable words at the end of each VC/CV word. Tell students that they are all examples of closed syllables that are words, but not VC/CV. Have a student point out the vowel, say the sound the vowel makes, point out the final consonant, and read the word aloud.
- Tell students that they are going to read some closed-syllable words. Have students read independently or with one like friend and on the top of 2a. They have their complete list page, making sure they understand the directions for each activity.
- For Activity 2, divide the following words:

DECODING 1. stop 2. up 3. fish 4. stop 5. stop 6. stop 7. stop

Practice Page 2b-2c

- Display the closed-syllable words at the end of each VC/CV word. Explain that some closed syllables are not words themselves, but are parts of words. Tell them that they will read the words and read to a consonant for each syllable, have students point out the vowel, say the sound the vowel makes, point out the final consonant, and read the syllable word.
