Ontopolitics in the Anthropocene David Chandler, 2018-01-19 The Anthropocene captures more than a debate over how to address the problems of climate change and global warming Increasingly it is seen to signify the end of the modern condition itself and potentially to open up a new era of political possibilities This is the first book to look at the new forms of governance emerging in the epoch of the Anthropocene Forms of rule which seek to govern without the handrails of modernist assumptions of command and control from the top down taking on board new ontopolitical understandings of the need to govern on the grounds of non linearity complexity and entanglement The book is divided into three parts each focusing on a distinct mode or understanding of governance Mapping Sensing and Hacking Mapping looks at attempts to govern through designing adaptive interventions into processes of interaction Sensing considers ways of developing greater real time sensitivity to changes in relations often deploying new technologies of Big Data and the Internet of Things Hacking analyses the development of ways of becoming with working to recomposition and reassemble relations in new and creative forms This work will be of great interest to students and scholars of international politics international security and international relations theory and those interested in critical theory and the way this is impacted by contemporary developments

Rethinking Political Risk Cecilia Emma Sottillotta, 2016-10-14 Political risk was first introduced as a component for assessing risk not directly linked to economic factors following the flow of capital from the US to Europe after the Second World War However the concept has rapidly gained relevance since with both public and private institutions developing complex methodologies designed to evaluate political risk factors and keep pace with the internationalization of trade and investment Continued global and regional economic and political instability means a plethora of different actors today conduct a diverse range of political risk analyses and assessments Starting from the epistemological foundations of political risk this books bridges the gap between theory and practice exploring operationalization and measurement issues with the support of an empirical case study on the Arab uprisings discussing the role of expert judgment in political forecasting and highlighting the main challenges and opportunities political risk analysts face in the wake of the digital revolution

Fractured Narratives and Pandemic Identities Om Prakash Dwivedi, Aleks Wansbrough, 2024-08-30 The book considers how identities have become more fractured since COVID 19 by thinking of COVID 19 in relation to other crises economic social digital and ecological and by drawing parallels to literature cinema and visual art COVID 19 was a type of apocalypse a catastrophic destructive event that produced dystopian measures in its wake and drew uncanny parallels to dystopic works of literature and speculative fiction Yet the pandemic was apocalyptic in another sense too The word apocalypse derives from apokalupsis which means disclosure or uncovering In this way COVID 19 also revealed the dystopian processes already at work in the world including digital forms of surveillance as well as the asymmetries within populations and divides in health outcomes between the Global North and Global South Indeed societies that have experienced the horrors of settler colonialism have already survived apocalypses COVID 19 serves then as a premonition for our climate emergency as well as an echo of other apocalyptic situations both real and imagined This book consists of essays from acclaimed theorists and scholars writing amid the pandemic and exposes the asymmetries of our divided world The volume will be indispensable for scholars and researchers of literature postcolonial studies cultural studies and comparative literature including post apocalyptic and speculative fiction The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Journal of Postcolonial Writing and are accompanied by a new afterword

Race in the Anthropocene Farai Chipato, David Chandler, 2024-08-14 Race in the Anthropocene provides a radical new perspective on the importance of race and coloniality in the Anthropocene It forwards the Black Horizon as a critical lens which places at its heart the importance of ontological concerns fundamental to problematising the violences and exclusions of the antiracist world At present multiple new approaches are emerging through the shared problem field of Anthropocene thought and policy offering to save not just the world but the practice of governance the business of Big Data the progress of development and the dream of peace It is against this backdrop that Race in the Anthropocene unsettles not just the already shaky foundations of modernity but also the affirmative visions of its critics by directing our gaze to how race and coloniality are baked into the grounding concepts of international thought This book is essential reading for students of International Relations particularly those interested in international politics security and development It is also of relevance for those interested in contemporary social political and environmental debates and policy practices

Digital Sociology Noortje Marres, 2017-05-11 This provocative new introduction to the field of digital sociology offers a critical overview of interdisciplinary debates about new ways of knowing society that are emerging today at the interface of computing media social research and social life Digital Sociology introduces key concepts methods and understandings that currently inform the development of specifically digital forms of social enquiry Marres assesses the relevance and usefulness of digital methods data and techniques for the study of sociological phenomena and evaluates the major claim that computation makes possible a new science of society As Marres argues the digital does much more than inspire innovation in social research it forces us to engage anew with fundamental sociological questions We must learn to appreciate that the digital has the capacity to throw into crisis existing knowledge frameworks and is likely to reconfigure wider relations This timely engagement with a key transformation of our age will be indispensable reading for undergraduate and graduate students
