Quantitative Methods for Conservation Biology Scott Ferson, Mark Burgman, 2006-05-09 Quantitative methods are needed in conservation biology more than ever as an increasing number of threatened species find their way onto international and national red lists Objective evaluation of population decline and extinction probability are required for sound decision making Yet as our colleague Selina Heppell points out population viability analysis and other forms of formal risk assessment are underused in policy formation because of data uncertainty and a lack of standardized methodologies and unambiguous criteria i e rules of thumb Models used in conservation biology range from those that are purely heuristic to some that are highly predictive Model selection should be dependent on the questions being asked and the data that are available We need to develop a toolbox of quantitative methods that can help scientists and managers with a wide range of systems and that are subject to varying levels of data uncertainty and environmental variability The methods outlined in the following chapters represent many of the tools needed to fill that toolbox When used in conjunction with adaptive management they should provide information for improved monitoring risk assessment and evaluation of management alternatives The first two chapters describe the application of methods for detecting trends and extinctions from sighting data Presence absence data are used in general linear and additive models in Chapters 3 and 4 to predict the extinction proneness of birds and to build habitat models for plants

BreezySwingO which simplifies the programming of GUIs BreezySwing insulates students from the complex details of laying out window components and responding to interface events Lambert and Osborne's book and software package enable students to enjoy the excitement of writing GUI based programs without being overwhelmed by or distracted from the more basic issues of algorithm design and the factoring of programs into classes The University Edition of Borland's JBuilder 4 is packaged with the text Petroleum Engineer International, 1982 Golden Days for Boys and Girls, 1898 The Effect of Markups on the Exchange Rate Exposure of Stock Returns George Allayannis, Jane Ihrig, 2000 This paper examines how to properly specify and test for factors that affect the exchange rate exposure of stock returns We develop a theoretical model which explicitly identifies three channels of exposure An industry's exposure increases 1 by greater competitiveness in the market where its final output is sold 2 the interaction of greater competitiveness in its export market and a larger share of exports in production and 3 the interaction of less competitiveness in its imported input market and the smaller the share of imports in production Using a sample of 82 U S manufacturing industries at the 4 digit SIC level classified in 18 2 digit industry groups between 1979 and 1995 we estimate exchange rate exposure as suggested by our model We find that 4 out of 18 industry groups are significantly exposed to exchange rate movements through at least one channel of exposure On average a 1 percent appreciation of the dollar decreases the return of the average industry by 0.13 percent Consistent with our model's predictions as an industry's markups fall rise its exchange rate exposure increases decreases Theory of Business Finance; Advanced Readings Donald H. Woods, 1967 The Effect of Emission Permits and Pigouvian Taxes on Market Structure Miguel Buñuel, 2001 George Broomhall's Corn Trade News, 1943 Communications Regulation, 2002 Canadian Journal of Fisheries and Aquatic Sciences, 1996 Industry Evolution and Transition Andrew Atkeson, Patrick J. Kehoe, 1997 Recently a large number of countries have undertaken major reforms that have led to a large increase in the number of new enterprises After these reforms however it has taken a number of years before output and productivity have begun to grow The thesis of this paper is that the process of starting new enterprises is turbulent and time consuming and as a result it takes time before the benefits of reform show up in increases in measured output and productivity To establish a neoclassical benchmark for reforming economies we ask what the path of transition looks like in a reforming economy for which the process governing the growth of new enterprises looks like it does in the U S a well functioning market economy We find that it takes 5.7 years until measured output and productivity begin to grow rapidly following reform This finding suggests that even if all other aspects of the economy are perfect the transition following economy wide reforms should take a substantial amount of time
