Romance, and Exoticism in French Cinema of the 1930s Colleen Kennedy-Karpat, 2013-04-11 Many popular French films of the 1930s captured the world and brought it into neighborhood cinemas for filmgoers who craved adventure. These films often served as visual postcards from the French empire which enjoyed an unprecedented visibility in domestic popular culture between the world wars. But the public appetite for the exotic also transcended imperial borders. Exoticist films displayed landscapes and different that lay beyond the metropole, many of which were not subject to European rule. This broad conception of the exotic meant that French narrative cinema represented both colonial and non colonial settings and populations developing a coherent set of tropes that were shaped yet not entirely defined by the politics of imperial rule. Empire alone cannot address the full range of the French exoticist imaginary that was projected onto movie screens in the 30s. Only by venturing beyond imperial boundaries can we fully understand how the French saw non Westerners and by extension how they saw themselves during this tumultuous decade. Rogues: Romance and Exoticism in French Cinema of the 1930s proposes a critical framework for exoticist cinema that includes and exceeds the limits of empire. From rogue colonies to the mîse en scène in love from the deserts of North Africa to the streets of Shanghai, this book identifies and analyzes recurring figures, common settings, major stars, plot devices, and narrative outcomes that dominated exoticist cinema at its popular peak.

Jackson Wright is the vice president of a security software firm and oversees the London office. When his mother needs his help, he's on the first plane home. But when he learns the extent of the problems, his first thought is to sell the family's commercial property. Once back in his hometown, the embers of Jackson's feelings for Carrie spark to life. But he has to do what is best for his mother, even if it means selling the building where Carrie's store is located. Will his decision end any chance of rekindling their friendship?
