Student Financing of Higher Education Donald Heller, Claire Callender, 2013-06-07 The financing of higher education is undergoing great change in many countries around the world In recent years many countries are moving from a system where the costs of funding higher education are shouldered primarily by taxpayers through government subsidies to one where students pay a larger share of the costs There are a number of factors driving these trends including A push for massification of higher education in the recognition that additional revenue streams are required above and beyond those funds available from governments in order to achieve higher participation rates Macroeconomic factors which lead to constraints on overall government revenues Political factors which manifest in demands for funding of over services thus restricting the funding available for higher tertiary education A concern that the returns to higher education accrue primarily to the individual rather than to society and thus students should bear more of the burden of paying for it This volume will help to contribute to an understanding of how these trends occur in various countries and regions around the world and the impact they have on higher education institutions students and society as a whole With contributions for the UK USA South Africa and China this vital new book gives a truly global picture of the rapidly changing situation

Student Loans Barbara D. Bovbjerg, 2000 This report presents data on default rates within two major federal student loan programs the Federal Direct Loan Program FDLP and the Federal Family Education Loan Program FFELP Data from the National Student Loan Data System for 1997 and 1998 indicate that overall direct and guaranteed student loan programs had similar default rates 6 6 percent for FDLP and 6 7 percent for FFELP They also had similar default rates when the comparisons emphasized type of school Within FDLP default rates differed substantially between nonconsolidated and consolidation loans for two of four repayment options standard and income contingent repayment Although reasons for these differences were unclear student loan experts said the results often reflected differences in the overall credit worthiness of borrowers who used the various options The Department of Education used several means to ensure proper FDLP loan servicing and collection monitoring requirements independent monitoring and external assessments Appended are data on study scope and methodology cohort
