Fletcher-Flinn, 2015-09-28 Learning to read and to spell are two of the most important cultural skills that must be acquired by children and for that matter anyone learning a second language We are not born with an innate ability to read A reading system of mental representations that enables us to read must be formed in the brain Learning to read in alphabetic orthographies is the acquisition of such a system which links mental representations of visual symbols letters in print words with pre existing phonological sound and semantic comprehension cognitive systems for language Although spelling draws on the same representational knowledge base and is usually correlated with reading the acquisition processes involved are not quite the same Spelling requires the sequential production of letters in words and at beginning levels there may not be a full degree of integration of phonology with its representation by the orthography Reading on the other hand requires only the recognition of a word for pronunciation Hence spelling is more difficult than reading and learning to spell may necessitate more complete representations or more conscious access to them The learning processes that children use to acquire such cognitive systems in the brain and whether these same processes are universal across different languages and orthographies are central theoretical questions Most children learn to read and spell their language at the same time thus the co ordination of these two facets of literacy acquisition needs explication as well as the effect of different teaching approaches on acquisition Lack of progress in either reading and or spelling is also a major issue of concern for parents and teachers necessitating a cross disciplinary approach to the problem encompassing major efforts from researchers in neuroscience cognitive science experimental psychology and education The purpose of this Research Topic is to summarize and review what has been accomplished so far and to further explore these general issues Contributions from different perspectives are welcomed and could include theoretical computational and empirical works that focus on the acquisition of literacy including cross orthographic research

Participation by 16-19 year olds in education and training Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee,2011-07-19 The Education Committee accepts that changes to student support needed to be made but says that the delay in deciding on allocations and the guiding principles for distribution should not have been allowed to happen The report states that the Government should have done more to acknowledge the Educational Maintenance Allowance s EMA combined impact on participation attainment and retention before it decided how to restructure financial support The bursary scheme which is to replace the EMA will inevitably lead to inconsistencies which could distort young people s choices of where to study It is not persuaded that bursaries administered by schools and colleges will necessarily be fairer or more discriminating than a slimmed down more targeted entitlement such as the EMA The report also highlights the difficulty of transferring data between schools and colleges and encourages the Department for Education to do more to ensure that information about pupils needs can move easily between educational institutions The Committee supports the Government s focus on Apprenticeships but urges it to protect quality at the same time as increasing numbers participating It also urges the Department for Education to fund the National Careers Service to provide face to face careers advice for young people

Research Anthology on Bilingual and Multilingual Education Management Association, Information Resources,2021-10-29 Given the boost in global immigration and migration as well as the emphasis on creating inclusive classrooms research is turning to the challenges that teachers face with the increasing need for bilingual and multilingual education The benefits of bilingual education are widespread allowing students to develop important cognitive skills such as critical thinking and problem solving as well as opening further career opportunities later in life However very few resources are available for the successful practice and implementation of this education into the curriculum with an even greater lack of appropriate cultural representation in the classroom Thus it is essential for educators to remain knowledgeable on the emerging strategies and procedures available for making bilingual and multilingual education successful The Research Anthology on Bilingual and Multilingual Education is a comprehensive reference source on bilingual and multilingual education that offers the latest insights on education strategy and considerations on the language learners themselves This research anthology features a diverse collection of authors offering valuable global perspectives on multilingual education Covering topics such as gamification learning processes and teaching models this anthology serves as an essential resource for professors teachers pre service teachers faculty of K 12 and higher education government officials policymakers researchers and academicians with an interest in key strategy and understanding of bilingual and multilingual education
