Here Comes the Sun Ken Worpole, 2000-12 Here Comes the Sun looks at how social reformers planners and architects in the early twentieth century tried to remake the city in the image of a sunlit ordered utopia While much has been written about architectural modernism Worpole concentrates less on buildings and more on the planning of the spaces in between the parks public squares open air museums promenades public pools and other public leisure facilities Life in the open was of particular concern to early urban planners and reformers with their dreams of release from the confines of overcrowded unsanitary slums Picturing youthful working class bodies made healthy by exercise and tanned by the sun they imagined an escape route from cities Worpole demonstrates how open air public spaces became sought after commissions for many early modernist architects in the early 1900s resulting in the transformation of the European cityscape a fascinating account of the political idealism that informed urban planning for the first two thirds of the twentieth century full of insights into how public space influences a sense of belonging and ownership The Guardian This is one of those books you stroke lovingly Open it and there is page after page of beautiful photographs this book combines history society politics environment and place in a well written and emotive text The strength of the book is the way it crosses these traditional boundaries and disciplines Town and Country Planning Drawing on architectural theories philosophy literature and even film making Worpole s book is wide ranging and erudite and should be of interest to the layperson as well as to the urban planner It is also elegantly written and complemented by a mixture of black and white and colour photographs to provide a visual emphasis to the points he raises

Gifts from the Garden Suzanne James,1961 The Great Book of Ghost Stories by Women (Mammoth Books)

Marie O'regan,2016-01-18 7 chilling short stories by outstanding female writers Women have always written exceptional stories of horror and the supernatural This anthology aims to showcase the very best of these from Amelia B Edwards s The Phantom Coach published in 1864 through past luminaries such as Edith Wharton and Mary Elizabeth Braddon From tales of ghostly children to visitations by departed loved ones and from heart rending stories to the profoundly unsettling depiction of extreme malevolence what each of these stories has in common is the effect of a slight chilling of the skin a feeling of something not quite present but nevertheless there If anything this showcase anthology proves that sometimes the female of the species can also be the most terrifying Generation ,1963
