Through the Looking-glass of Interculturality Fred Dervin, Hamza R'boul, 2022-10-31 This book starts from the premise that honest and constructive dialogue between scholars and educators of interculturality especially from different geopolitical spheres is needed more than ever The book is about the important and yet contested notion of interculturality a notion used in different fields of research It was co written by two scholars who have never met before and who got to know each other intellectually and personally in the process of writing this book using interculturality as a looking glass Re negotiating meanings ideologies and their own identities in writing the chapters together the authors enter into multifaceted dialogues and intercommunicate sharing while accepting disagreements The co authors different profiles in terms of geography generation status preferred paradigms and multilingual identity amongst others are put forward confronted and mirrored in the different chapters leading to the joint negotiation of aspirations concerning interculturality in communication and education While describing their current takes on interculturality they also conduct autocritiques of their past and present engagement with the notion The following questions are also addressed Who is talking the most about interculturality in the world today Whose voices are not heard How to disrupt current hegemonies around the notion for real And how to promote epistemological plurality in the discourses and narratives shaping our understandings of the notion Autocritiquing is proposed as a way of unthinking and rethinking interculturality ad infinitum This book argues that engaging with the notion requires constant self reflection examining one's positionality and intersectionality listening to the voices that one projects onto the world of e.g. research and education and operating transformations in one's thinking trying out new paradigms ideologies and methods

Life Didier Fassin, 2018-06-22 How can we think of life in its dual expression matter and experience the living and the lived Philosophers and more recently social scientists have offered multiple answers to this question often privileging one expression or the other the biological or the biographical But is it possible to conceive of them together and thus reconcile naturalist and humanist approaches Using research conducted on three continents and engaging in critical dialogue with Wittgenstein Benjamin and Foucault Didier Fassin attempts to do so by developing three concepts forms of life ethics of life and politics of life In the conditions of refugees and asylum seekers in the light of mortality statistics and death benefits and via a genealogical and ethnographical inquiry the moral economy of life reveals troubling tensions in the way contemporary societies treat human beings Once the pieces of this anthropological composition are assembled like in Georges Perec's jigsaw puzzle an image appears that of unequal lives

Technology and the Philosophy of Religion David Lewin, 2010-09-13 The last one hundred years has seen unimaginable technological progress transforming every aspect of human life Yet we seem unable to shake a profound unease with the direction of modern technology and its ideological siblings global capitalism and massive consumption Philosophers such as Marcuse Borgmann and especially Heidegger have developed important analyses of technological society however in this book David Lewin argues that their ideas have remained limited either by their secular context or by the narrow conception of religion that they do allow This study guides the reader along the newly formed paths of the philosophy of technology arguing that where those paths come to an abrupt end a religious discourse is needed to articulate the ultimate concerns that drive technological action It calls for a meditation on the central insight of many religious traditions that in an ultimate sense we know not what we do To acknowledge that we know not what we do is the first step towards a theology of technology that draws upon insights from the mystical theological tradition as well as from recent developments in the continental philosophy of religion
