The Law of Geographical Indications Bernard O'Connor, 2004 Over time a product made in a specific place can develop a unique reputation This reputation is often due to special characteristics present in the place its people its climate and its landscape There are thousands of examples In the food and drinks sector there are fruits and vegetables wines cheeses and cured meats Champagne Cheddar Parma ham and Tipperary turnips In manufacturers there are Persian carpets Murano glass Toledo steel and Japanese electronics Should all these reputations be protected by law and if so how This book The Law of Geographical Indications addresses these questions The book examines what names can and cannot be protected in national and international law and the nature of the protection given In the last years there has been a rapid expansion of the protection given to geographical indications The book looks at the specific systems adopted in some countries and the general systems in others Protection is most developed in Europe and specific attention is given to the rules in the European Union and the bilateral agreements the EU has forged with many third countries The book also examines protection in international law from the 1883 Paris Convention on the protection of intellectual property in general to the more recent TRIPs Agreement in the WTO Also examined are the two most controversial legal issues surrounding the protection of geographical indications namely conflicts between trademarks and geographical indications and the generic character of certain names

Neem: Today and in the New Millennium Opende Koul, Seema Wahab, 2007-05-08 The chemicals from plant sources generally termed as phytochemicals play an important role in acceptance or rejection of the plant by the pests as they could be distasteful or toxic on one hand or on the other hand specialist herbivores have the capability to feed on many such chemicals as they are able to process these natural products in a manner that is beneficial to them In the wake of increasing environmental degradation due to burgeoning synthetic chemicals there has been a process going on to rediscover the usefulness of plants and herbs and a continued effort for more than 2 decades has been to study the green products for cures for several ailments and pest management In fact according to Indian Medicinal Plants A Sectoral Study the global trade for medicinal plants amounts to about US 60 billion and the world demand continues to grow at the rate of 7 per cent per annum Although many such plants are known in literature neem has been one of trees with manifold virtues Indian neem tree Azadirachta indica A Juss which is a large evergreen tree is an outstanding example among plants that has been subject matter of numerous scientific studies concerning its utilization in medicine industry and agriculture So far neem preparations have been evaluated against more than 500 species of insects and more than 400 hundred are reported to be susceptible at different concentrations
