Migration Identity Central Asia Experience:

The Grass is Always Greener? Timur Dadabaev, 2022-04-02 This edited book unpacks the nature of Central Asian migration to East Asia. This book uses the case of Uzbekistan, the most populous country of Central Asia, and demonstrates the migration channels and adaptation strategies of migrants to the realities of Japan. What are the foreign policy engagements of Japan in Central Asia? How do they relate to the intensifying educational mobility and labour migration from Central Asia, in particular Uzbekistan, to Japan? By answering these two questions, this book aims to detail the social factors that play important roles in localizing foreign policy engagements and narrating them in terms easily understood by the public.

Being Muslim in Central Asia, 2018-01-03 This volume explores the changing place of Islam in contemporary Central Asia, understanding religion as a societal shaper, a roadmap for navigating quickly evolving social and cultural values. Islam can take on multiple colors and identities, from a purely transcendental faith in God to a cauldron of ideological ferment for political ideology via diverse culture, community, and history-based phenomena. The volume discusses what it means to be a Muslim in today's Central Asia by looking at both historical and sociological features, investigates the relationship between Islam, politics, and the state, the changing role of Islam in terms of societal values, and the issue of female attire as a public debate. Contributors include Aur lie Biard, Tim Epkenhans, Nurgul Esenamanova, Azamat Junisbai, Barbara Junisbai, Marlene Laruelle, Marantha Miles, Emil Nasritdinov, Shahnoza Nozimova, Yaacov Ro i, Wendell Schwab, Manja Stephan, Emmrich Rano, Turaeva, Alon Wainer, Alexander Wolters, Galina M. Yemelianova, Baurzhan Zhussupov.

Migration, Homeland, and Belonging in Eurasia Cynthia J. Buckley, Blair A. Ruble, Erin Trough, Hofmann, 2008-09-09 Migration, a force throughout the world, has special meanings in the former Soviet lands. Soviet successor countries, each with strong ethnic associations, have pushed some racial groups out and pulled others back home. Forcible relocations of the Stalin era were reversed, and areas previously closed for security reasons were opened to newcomers. These countries represent a fascinating mix of the motivations and achievements of migration in Russia and Central Asia. Migration, Homeland, and Belonging in Eurasia examines patterns of migration and sheds new light on government interests, migrant motivations, historical precedents, and community identities. The contributors come from a variety of disciplines: political science, sociology, history, and geography. Initial chapters offer overall assessments of contemporary migration debates in the region. Subsequent chapters feature individual case studies that highlight continuity and change in migration debates in imperial and Soviet periods. Several chapters treat specific topics in Central Eurasia and the Far East, such as the movement of ethnic Kazakhs from Mongolia to Kazakhstan and the continuing attractiveness to migrants of supposedly uneconomical cities in Siberia.

Claiming and Making Muslim Worlds Jeanine Elif Dağyeli, Claudia Ghrawi, Ulrike Freitag, 2021-07-05 To what extent can Islam be localized in an increasingly interconnected world? The contributions to this volume investigate different facets of Muslim lives in the context of increasingly dense transregional connections highlighting how the circulation of ideas about Muslimness contributed to the shaping of specific ideas about what constitutes Islam and its role in society and politics Infrastructural changes have prompted the intensification of scholarly and trade networks prompted the circulation of new literary genres or shaped stereotypical images of Muslims This in turn had consequences in widely differing fields such as self representation and governance of Muslims The contributions in this volume explore this issue in geographical contexts ranging from South Asia to Europe and the US Coming from the disciplines of history anthropology religious studies literary studies and political science the authors collectively demonstrate the need to combine a translocal perspective with very specific local and historical constellations The book complicates conventional academic divisions and invites to think in historically specific translocal contexts The Migration

Migration and Migrant Identities in the Near East from Antiquity to the Middle Ages Justin Yoo,Andrea Zerbini,Caroline Barron,2018-10-29 This book brings together recent developments in modern migration theory a wide range of sources new and old tools revisited from GIS to epigraphic studies from stable isotope analysis to the study of literary sources and case studies from the ancient eastern Mediterranean that illustrate how new theories and techniques are helping to give a better understanding of migratory flows and diaspora communities in the ancient Near East A geographical gap has emerged in studies of historical migration as recent works have focused on migration and mobility in the western part of the Roman Empire and thus fail to bring a significant contribution to the study of diaspora communities in the eastern Mediterranean Bridging this gap represents a major scholarly desideratum and by drawing upon the experiences of previously neglected migrant and diaspora communities in the eastern Mediterranean from the Hellenistic period to the early mediaeval world this collection of essays approaches migration studies with new perspectives and methodologies shedding light not only on the study of migrants in the ancient world but also on broader issues concerning the rationale for mobility and the creation and features of diaspora identities

China's Globalization from Below Theodor Tudoroiu, 2021-09-09 This book analyzes the Chinese centered globalization from below brought about by China's entrepreneurial migrants and conceived of as a projection of Chinese power in the Belt and Road Initiative partner states It identifies the features of this globalization from below scrutinizes its mutually reinforcing relationship with China's globalization from above and shows that these two globalizations are intrinsically related to the construction of a new international order It outlines how the actors in China's globalization from below include Chinese emigrants who are located in informal transnational economic networks It reveals that Beijing has enacted many laws that compel these emigrants to contribute to the development of their country of origin but also influences them through the successful promotion of a specific type of deterritorialized nationalism and that China is ready to impose harsh punitive actions on political elites in partner states which fail to protect its migrants or limit their economic activities Finally it argues that China's globalization from below is fundamentally different from the non hegemonic globalization from below represented by among others Lebanese and East Indian traders and that China's globalization from below is rather a self interested national strategy intended to support the construction of a Chinese centered international order
