The Routledge Handbook of Comparative Rural Policy Matteo Vittuari, John Devlin, Marco Pagani, Thomas G. Johnson, 2019-10-16 This volume represents the result of almost two decades of trans Atlantic collaborative development of a policy research paradigm the International Comparative Rural Policy Studies program Over this period dozens of scientists from different disciplines but with a common interest in rural issues and policy have collaboratively studied the policies in North America Europe and other parts of the world A core element of the book is the idea and practice of comparative research and analysis what can be learned from comparisons how and why policies vary in different contexts and what lessons might or might not be transferable across borders It provides skills for the use of comparative methods as important tools to analyze the functioning of strategies and specific policy interventions in different contexts and a holistic approach for the management of resources in rural regions It promotes innovation as a tool to valorize endogenous resources and empower local communities and offers case studies of rural policy in specific contexts The book largely adopts a territorial approach to rural policy This means the book is more interested in rural regions their people and economies and in the policies that affect them than in rural sectors and sectoral policies per se The audience of the book is by definition international and includes students attending courses in agricultural and rural policy rural and regional studies and natural resource management lecturers seeking course material and case studies to present to their students in any of the courses listed above professionals working in the field of rural policy policy makers and civil servants at different levels seeking tools to better understand rural policy both at the local and global scale and to better recognize and comprehend how to transfer best practices

Handbook of the Economics of International Migration Barry Chiswick, Paul Miller, 2014-12-08 The economic literature on international migration interests policymakers as well as academics throughout the social sciences. These volumes, the first of a new subseries in the Handbooks in Economics, describe and analyze scholarship created since the inception of serious attention began in the late 1970s. This literature appears in the general economics journals in various field journals in economics especially but not exclusively those covering labor market and human resource issues in interdisciplinary immigration journals and in papers by economists published in journals associated with history sociology political science demography and linguistics among others. Covers a range of topics from labor market outcomes and fiscal consequences to the effects of international migration on the level and distribution of income and everything in between. Encompasses a wide range of topics related to migration and is multidisciplinary in some aspects which is crucial on the topic of migration. Appeals to a large community of scholars interested in this topic and for whom no overviews or summaries exist.

Migrant Remittances in South Asia M. Rahman, T. Yong, A. Ullah, 2014-11-25. This volume provides theoretical treatments of remittance on how its development potential is translated into reality. The authors meticulously delve into diverse mechanisms through which migrant communities remit investigating how recipients engage in the development process in South Asia.

Política social y bienestar Rodolfo De la Torre, Eduardo Rodríguez-Oreggia, Isidro Soloaga, People in motion, forests in transition: Trends in migration, urbanization, and remittances and their effects on tropical forests Susanna Hecht, Anastasia Lucy Yang, Bimbika Sijapati Basnett, Christine Padoch, Nancy L. Peluso, 2015-11-08. Migration is not new. In recent decades however human mobility has increased in numbers and scope and has helped fuel a global shift in the human population from predominantly rural to urban. Migration overall is a livelihood investment and resilience strategy. It is affected by changes across multiple sectors and at varying scales and is affected by macro policies transnational networks regional conditions local demands political and social relations household options and individual desires. Such enhanced mobility changes in populations and communities in both sending and receiving areas and the remittances that mobility generates are key elements of current transitions that have both direct and indirect consequences for forests. Because migration processes engage with rural populations and spaces in the tropics they inevitably affect forest resources through changes in use and management. Yet links between forests and migration have been overlooked too often in the literature on migration as well as in discussions about forest based livelihoods. With a focus on landscapes that include tropical forests this paper explores trends and diversities in the ways in which migration urbanization and personal remittances affect rural livelihoods and forests.

Handbook of Health and Migration in Latin America and the Caribbean Alfonso Urzúa, Baltica Cabieses, 2025-04-30. This handbook presents a comprehensive overview of theories and scientific evidence related to the complex and dynamic relationship between migration and population health in Latin America and the Caribbean. According to the International Organization for Migration (IOM) it is estimated that as of 2020 there were more than 281 million international migrants around the world. From that total 43 million are in Central and South America and the Caribbean But despite the relevance of migratory movements in these regions most of the scientific knowledge about health and migration is produced by researchers from the Global North which has produced a significant North South divide that profoundly affects how knowledge is theorized researched and transferred into practice globally This volume aims to contribute to reducing this gap by bringing together chapters that discuss health and migration in Latin America and the Caribbean based mainly on publications and scientific reports produced in the region and written by local experts coming from both the health and social sciences For too long research and policy in global health have been predominantly influenced by North American and European institutions perspectives and priorities In contrast Latin America brings forward a distinctive and rich research tradition in the health sciences with a vibrant research community dedicated to social medicine and critical approaches in social epidemiology These perspectives are particularly well suited for analyzing the social structural and political determination of health inequities including those related to migration This handbook therefore is not only an academic contribution but a vital call for regionally grounded research innovative theoretical approaches and a much needed rebalancing of the global discourse on migration and health Michael Knipper Lancet Migration Regional Focal Point for Latin America Some chapters of this handbook were originally written in Spanish and translated into English with the help of artificial intelligence A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content

World Economic Outlook, October 2016 International Monetary Fund. Research Dept., 2016-10-04 According to the October 2016 World Economic Outlook global growth is projected to slow to 3.1 percent in 2016 before recovering to 3.4 percent in 2017 The forecast revised down by 0.1 percentage point for 2016 and 2017 relative to April's report reflects a more subdued outlook for advanced economies following the June U.K. vote in favor of leaving the European Union Brexit and weaker than expected growth in the United States These developments have put further downward pressure on global interest rates as monetary policy is now expected to remain accommodative for longer Although the market reaction to the Brexit shock was reassuringly orderly the ultimate impact remains very unclear as the fate of institutional and trade arrangements between the United Kingdom and the European Union is uncertain Financial market sentiment toward emerging market economies has improved with expectations of lower interest rates in advanced economies reduced concern about China's near term prospects following policy support to growth and some firming of commodity prices But prospects differ sharply across countries and regions with emerging Asia in general and India in particular showing robust growth and sub-Saharan Africa experiencing a sharp slowdown In advanced economies a subdued outlook subject to sizable uncertainty and downside risks may fuel further political discontent with anti integration policy platforms gaining more traction Several emerging market and developing economies still face daunting policy challenges in adjusting to weaker commodity prices These worrisome prospects make the need for a broad based policy response to raise growth and manage vulnerabilities more urgent than ever
