English National Identity and Football Fan Culture

Tom Gibbons, 2016-05-13

In recent years scholars have understood the increasing use of the St George's Cross by football fans to be evidence of a rise in a specifically English identity. This has emerged as part of a wider national response to broader political processes such as devolution and European integration which have fragmented identities within the UK. Using the controversial figurational sociological approach advocated by the twentieth century theorist Norbert Elias, this book challenges such a view drawing on ethnographic research amongst fans to explore the precise nature of the relationship between contemporary English national identity and football fan culture. Examining football fans' expressions of Englishness in public houses and online spaces, the author discusses the effects of globalization, European integration and UK devolution on English society, revealing that the use of the St George's Cross does not signal the emergence of a specifically English national consciousness but in fact masks a more complex multi-layered process of national identity construction. A detailed and grounded study of identity, nationalism and globalization amongst football fans, English National Identity and Football Fan Culture will appeal to scholars and students of politics, sociology and anthropology with interests in ethnography, the sociology of sport, fan cultures, globalization and contemporary national identities.

British gambling prevalence survey 2007

Heather Wardle, National Centre for Social Research, Gambling Commission, 2007-10-03. This report, carried out by the National Centre for Social Research, sets out the results of the British Gambling Prevalence Survey (BGPS) 2007, the second nationally representative survey of its kind. The first was undertaken in 1999. Based on a random sample of just over 9,000 people, the survey contains data on attitudes to gambling, levels of participation and the prevalence of problem gambling. The report will provide the Gambling Commission and the Government with some important benchmark information which will help assess the overall impact of the Gambling Act following its full implementation on 1st September 2007. Findings include that 68 per cent had participated in some form of gambling activity within the past year, compared to 72 per cent in 1999. The most popular activities were the National Lottery Draw (57 per cent), scratchcards (20 per cent), horserace betting (17 per cent) and playing slot machines (14 per cent). Six per cent of the population used the internet to gamble in the past year.

Systems Thinking Methods in Sport Scott Mclean, Mitchell Naughton, Gemma Read, Neville A. Stanton, Adam Hulme, Guy Walker, Paul Salmon, 2024-09-26 Sport is increasingly being described as a complex system This inherent complexity cannot be understood by examining components in isolation rather the system as a whole should represent the unit of analysis Systems thinking is the answer to understanding this complexity and is gaining traction in sport

Systems thinking provides a philosophy and a set of associated methods which can be used to understand and optimise the behaviour of complex systems such as those inherent within sport This book presents for the first time a practical guide to applying contemporary systems thinking methods in sport as well as case study applications demonstrating how their outputs can be translated in practice The methods described in this book can be used for better understanding the systemic influences in a broad range of sport contexts including performance injury team functioning decision making adverse incidents sports organisation design and redesign technology implementation and proactive risk assessments Systems Thinking Methods in Sport provides a practical step by step guide for sports practitioners and stakeholders as well as university students and academics in applying state of the art systems thinking methods to sport Best Practice
