To Understand New Museology in the XXI Century Paula Assuncao, Judite Primo, Wilke Heijnen, Universidade Lusófona. Graduate program in Museology, 2013-06-08 In the last decades there has been a profound change in the world of museums as well as in new museology In 1992 the Declaration of Caracas called for the acknowledgement of museums as means of communication in the service of communities It proposed that museums would become social managers working with communities to transform reality Three years later a publication in Brazil aimed at discussing the impact of meetings such as this one and of others including the Round Table of Santiago of 1972 It stated that despite the fact that ideas upon which new museology was based have become influential in museological theory too few changes had taken place in the daily practice of traditional museums I believe that the publication pre-empted the major turning point in relations between museums and society Towards the end of the 90 s many forces contributed to the opening of a new chapter on participation in museum affairs The sustainable development agenda social inclusion policies in the UK the strengthening of emancipation movements such as the indigenous movements in North America and the growing multiculturalism in European countries promoted a new age of transformations in museums A renewed participation paradigm began to focus on the relations between museums and multiple some new stakeholders Dealing with stakeholders implied negotiation influence and sharing of ownership These changes meant that the so called traditional museums an antagonism introduced by the new museologists themselves shared many of the preoccupations of the new museology In different parts of the globe various ways of interacting with groups in society added further opportunities of using heritage as a resource and as a tool for understanding and transforming the world In the English speaking circles in Europe this is usually labelled new museology too The term was coined by Peter Vergo in 1989 and since then has been widely used with reference to critical practice in museums which involves work with communities It is important to note that the Latin new museology and the British new museology are not the same Although often mistaken for each other they have fundamentally different approaches to social development as explained in the articles that follow this introduction However both are part of the same attempt to take museums into an age of increased democratization of museological tools and heritage processes There is much to learn in dialogue In the new millennium changes continue to happen Social movements for instance are appropriating heritage tools Networked modes of organizing knowledge and action in society deeply influence museums The same way the modes and means of the Latin new museology are also developing in time The increasing human mobility immigration and cultural hybridization for example represent fundamental forces of change Classic types of new museums such as the ecomuseum multiplied in rural areas not in urban environments They were focused on the concept of locality bounded communities on local development and on the territory But what happens when societies become more global when the territory becomes more fragmented and fast changing What happens when the concept of community and the organization of social action take other forms What happens when what makes a group of people into a community is not mainly their shared experience in the territory but their shared condition in society as in the case of minorities What happens when what drives people to action is mainly the desire to propose a new project of society as is the case with social movements many times operating in networks Ecomuseums 2nd Edition Peter Davis, 2011-06-02

Doing Museology Differently Duncan Grewcock, 2013-09-05 One might believe that museum studies is a stable field of academic inquiry based on a set of familiar institutional forms and functions. But as institutions, museums have never been stable or singular and neither has the discipline of museum studies. Museum studies as a field of academic inquiry has received little critical attention. One result of this neglect has arguably been a lack of invention in museum studies; another is the distancing of academic museum studies from museum practice. Doing Museology Differently charts a different course. A critical creative reflection on academic practice, the book takes the form of a narrative account of museological fieldwork. A research story unfolds challenging academic conventions at the level of its own presentation: the book combines critical museum visiting with an autobiographical voice. The identification of a previously underexplored interdisciplinary space leads the author to experiment with museum studies using contemporary developments in the theory and practice of human geography. The new approaches to museological research and representation that emerge from this unique inquiry challenge assumed institutional and intellectual boundaries and act as a call to further creative experimentation.

Reshaping Museum Space Suzanne Macleod, 2005 Reshaping Museum Space pulls together the views of an international group of museum professionals, architects, designers and academics, highlighting the complexity, significance and malleability of museum space and provides reflections upon recent developments in museum architecture and exhibition design. Various chapters concentrate on the process of architectural and spatial reshaping and the problems of navigating the often contradictory agendas and aspirations of the broad range of professionals and stakeholders involved in any new project. Contributors review recent new build expansion and exhibition projects, questioning the types of museum space required at the beginning of the twenty-first century and highlighting a range of possibilities for creative museum design. Essential reading for anyone involved in creating, designing and project managing the development of museum exhibits and vital reading for students of the discipline.

Musealisierte Mode Gudrun M. König, Gabriele Mentges, 2020 Modeausstellungen boomen. Sie zeigen das Werk international bekannter Designer:innen wie Jil Sander, Vivienne Westwood und Karl Lagerfeld, aber auch Aspekte von Massenmode wie Fast Fashion, Jugendszenen und Green Fashion. Im Zentrum dieses Bandes stehen museumswissenschaftliche Kontroversen zwischen Mode und Bekleidung sowie zwischen Kultur und designhistorischen Zugängen. Die mehrsprachige Publikation vernetzt internationale Perspektiven und führt Positionen aus Universitäten und Museen zusammen. Fashion exhibitions are in fashion. They display the work of renowned fashion designers such as Jil Sander.

Vivienne Westwood and Karl Lagerfeld but also deal with aspects like Fast Fashion Fair Fashion or youth cultures This edited volume brings into focus museological controversies the distinction between fashion and dress and the different approaches of cultural history and design history The multilingual publication links international perspectives and merges positions from both universities and museums

Museums and the Public Sphere Jennifer Barrett, 2012-04-30 Museums and the Public Sphere investigates the role of museums around the world as sites of democratic public space Explores the role of museums around the world as sites of public discourse and democracy Examines the changing idea of the museum in relation to other public sites and spaces including community cultural centers public halls and the internet Offers a sophisticated portrait of the public and how it is realized invoked and understood in the museum context Offers relevant case studies and discussions of how museums can engage with their publics in more complex productive ways

Museum Theory Andrea Witcomb, Kylie Message, 2020-11-17 MUSEUM THEORY EDITED BY ANDREA WITCOMB AND KYLIE MESSAGE Museum Theory offers critical perspectives drawn from a broad range of disciplinary and intellectual traditions This volume describes and challenges previous ways of understanding museums and their relationship to society Essays written by scholars from museology and other disciplines address theoretical reflexivity in the museum exploring the contextual theoretical and pragmatic ways museums work are understood and are experienced Organized around three themes Thinking about Museums Disciplines and Politics and Theory from Practice Practicing Theory the text includes discussion and analysis of different kinds of museums from various primarily contemporary national and local contexts Essays consider subjects including the nature of museums as institutions and their role in the public sphere cutting edge museum practice and their connections with current concerns and the links between museum studies and disciplines such as cultural studies anthropology and history

Museum Practices and the Posthumanities Fiona R. Cameron, 2023-10-24 This book critiques modern museologies and curatorial practices that have been complicit in emerging existential crises It confidently presents novel more than human curatorial visions methods frameworks policies and museologies radically refiguring the epistemological foundations of curatorial museological thinking and practice for a habitable planet Modern curatorial and museological practices are dominated by modern humanism in which capital growth social technological advancement hubris extraction species logics and colonial domination predominate often without reflection While history science and technology museums and their engagement with non human worlds have always been ecological as an empirical reality the human centred frameworks and forms of human agency that institutions deploy tend to be non cognizant of this reality Museum Practices and the Posthumanities Curating for Planetary Habitability reveals how these practices are ill equipped to deal with the contemporary world of rapid digital transformations post Covid living climate change and its impacts among other societal changes and it shows how museums might best meet these challenges by thinking with and in more than human worlds This book is aimed at museological scholars and museum professionals and it will provide them with the inspiration to conduct research on and curate from a different ecological reference point to promote a world good enough for all things to thrive in radical co existence The Personalization of the Museum Visit Seph Rodney, 2019-05-13 The Personalization of the Museum Visit examines a fundamental shift in institutional behavior in museums located in the United States and the United Kingdom Contending that art museums have moved toward a new paradigm of public engagement it posits that modern museum visitors are treated as self directed clients with the agency to make meaning for themselves The book then considers how this change has come about examining factors such as the onset of a new museology an experience economy and a marketing revolution Drawing on extensive research undertaken at Britain s Tate Modern the book examines a range of issues including visitor engagement curatorial practice and museum management A visit experience that is customizable to the individual visitor in which curators and marketers work together with visitor clients to create an experience of personalized meaning is Rodney argues rising in prevalence in the art museum field but it is also being stymied by certain structural impediments This book examines such obstacles including institutional division of labor long standing conceptions or misconceptions of the museum s mission and the orientation of museums toward a certain conceptual model of their visitors The Personalization of the Museum Visit is essential reading for scholars and students engaging with issues of visitor engagement curatorial practice and museum management With a particular focus on the role of business interests and public policy the book should also be of interest to those undertaking research in fields outside of museum and visitor studies

Museums After Modernism Griselda Pollock, Joyce Zemans, 2008-04-15 Museums After Modernism is a unique collection that showcases the ways questions about the museum go to the heart of contemporary debates about the production consumption and distribution of art The book features expert artists curators and art historians who grapple with many of the vibrant issues in museum studies while paying homage to a new museology that needs to be considered Examines the key contemporary debates in museum studies Includes original essays by noted artists curators and art historians Engages with vital issues in the practice of art making and art exhibiting Edited by the world renowned art historian and author Griselda Pollock Dictionary of Museology François Mairesse, 2023-04-05 The internationally focused Dictionary of Museology reflects the diversity of cultural and disciplinary approaches to theory and practice in the museum field today The museum world is changing rapidly and the characteristics and social roles of the world s approximately 100 000 existing museums are constantly evolving In addition to their traditional functions of preservation research and communication museums are increasingly addressing issues related to social inclusion human rights sustainable development and finances all of which are explored in this dictionary Drawing on the support of an international editorial committee including influential figures from the US Canada Brazil Japan Spain Germany France and the UK this collaborative work produced by over 100 researchers from around the world provides an overview of this unique field by defining over 1 000 terms relating to museology The Dictionary of Museology is intended for a broad spectrum of museum professionals academics researchers and students The book will be especially useful to those working with international partners since a common lexicon that conveys the complex reality of current social and cultural values is particularly vital for those working across borders
