New York And Slavery Time To Teach The Truth:

New York and Slavery Alan J. Singer, 2008 Blending historical narrative with ideas for engaging young people as historians and thinkers Alan J Singer introduces readers to the truth about the history of slavery in New York State and by extension about race in American society Singer's perspective as a historian and a former secondary school social studies teacher offers a wealth of new information about the past and introduces people and events that have been erased from history New York both the city and the state were centers of the abolitionist struggle to finally end human bondage however at the same time enslaved Africans built the infrastructure of the colonial city The author shows teachers how to develop ways to teach about this very difficult topic He shows them how to deal with racial preconceptions and tensions in the classroom and calls upon teachers and students to become historical activists conduct research write reports and present their findings to the public

Race Lessons Prentice T. Chandler, Todd S. Hawley, 2017-05-01 We hold that the mission of social studies is not attainable without attention to the ways in which race and racism play out in society past present and future In a follow up to the book Doing Race in Social Studies 2015 this new volume addresses practical considerations of teaching about race within the context of history geography government economics and the behavioral sciences Race Lessons Using Inquiry to Teach About Race in Social Studies addresses the space between the theoretical and the practical and provides teachers and teacher educators with concrete lesson ideas for how to engage learners with social studies content and race Oftentimes social studies teachers do not teach about race because of several factors teacher fear personal notions of colorblindness and attachment to multicultural narratives that stress assimilation This volume will begin to help teachers and teacher educators start the conversation around realistic and practical race pedagogy The chapters included in this volume are written by prominent social studies scholars and classroom teachers This work is unique in that it represents an attempt to use Critical Race Theory and inquiry pedagogy Inquiry Design Model to teach about race in the social science disciplines

Interpreting Slavery at Museums and Historic Sites Kristin L. Gallas, James DeWolf Perry, 2014-12-23 Interpreting Slavery at Museums and Historic Sites aims to move the field forward in its collective conversation about the interpretation of slavery acknowledging the criticism of the past and acting in the present to develop an inclusive interpretation of slavery Presenting the history of slavery in a comprehensive and conscientious manner is difficult and requires diligence and compassion for the history itself for those telling the story and for those hearing the stories but it's a necessary part of our collective narrative about our past present and future This book features best practices for Interpreting slavery across the country and for many people The history of slavery while traditionally interpreted primarily on southern plantations is increasingly recognized as relevant at historic sites across the nation It is also more than just an African American European American story it is relevant to the history of citizens of Latino Caribbean African and indigenous descent as well It is also pertinent to those descended from immigrants who arrived after slavery whose stories are deeply intertwined with the legacy of slavery and its aftermath Developing support within an institution for the interpretation of slavery Many institutions are reticent to approach such a potentially volatile subject so this book examines how proponents at several sites including Monticello and Mount Vernon were able to make a strong case to their constituents Training interpreters in not only a depth of knowledge of the subject but also the confidence to speak on this controversial issue in public and the compassion to handle such a sensitive historical issue The book will be accessible and of interest for professionals at all levels in the public history field as well as students at the undergraduate and graduate levels in museum studies and public history programs

America's First Freedom Rider Jerry Mikorenda, 2019-12-17 In 1854 traveling was full of danger Omnibus accidents were commonplace Pedestrians were regularly attacked by the Five Points gangs Rival police forces watched and argued over who should help Pickpockets drunks and kidnappers were all part of the daily street scene in old New York Yet somehow they endured and transformed a trading post into the Empire City None of this was on Elizabeth

Jennings's mind as she climbed the platform onto the Chatham Street horsecar. But her destination and that of the country took a sudden turn when the conductor told her to wait for the next car because it had her people in it. When she refused to step off the bus, she was assaulted by the conductor who was aided by a NY police officer. On February 22, 1855, Elizabeth Jennings v Third Avenue Rail Road case was settled. Seeking 500 in damages, the jury stunned the courtroom with a 250 verdict in Lizzie's favor. Future US president Chester A. Arthur was Jennings' attorney, and their lives would be forever intertwined. This is the story of what happened that day. It's also the story of Jennings and Arthur's families, the struggle for equality and race relations. It's the history of America at its most despicable and most exhilarating. Yet few historians know of Elizabeth Jennings or the impact she had on desegregating public transit.

The Catskills Stephen M. Silverman, Raphael D. Silver, 2015-10-27. The Catskills, Cat Creek in Dutch America's original frontier northwest of New York City, with its seven hundred thousand acres of forest land preserve and its five counties: Delaware, Greene, Sullivan, Ulster, Schoharie. America's first great vacationland, the subject of the nineteenth-century Hudson River School paintings that captured the almost godlike majesty of the mountains and landscapes, the skies, waterfalls, pastures, cliffs, refuge, and home to poets and gangsters, tycoons and politicians, preachers and outlaws, musicians and spiritualists, outcasts and rebels. Stephen Silverman and Raphael Silver tell of the turning points that made the Catskills so vital to the development of America: Henry Hudson's first spotting of the distant blue mountains in 1609; the New York State constitutional convention resulting in New York's own Declaration of Independence from Great Britain and its own constitution, causing the ire of the invading British army; the Catskills as a popular attraction in the 1800s with the construction of the Catskill Mountain House and its rugged imitators that offered WASP guests one hundred percent restricted accommodations; Hebrews will knock vainly for admission, a policy that remained until the Catskills became the curative for tubercular patients, sending real estate prices plummeting and the WASP enclave on to richer pastures. Here are the gangsters Jack Legs Diamond and Dutch Schultz among them who sought refuge in the Catskill Mountains and the resorts that after World War II catered to upwardly mobile Jewish families, giving rise to hundreds of hotels inspired by Grossinger's, the original Disneyland, with knishes, the Concord, Brown's Hotel, Kutsher's Hotel, and others in what became known as the Borscht Belt and Sour Cream Alps, with their headliners from movies and radio: Phil Silvers, Eddie Cantor, Milton Berle, et al, and others who learned their trade there among them Moss Hart who got his start organizing summer theatricals, Sid Caesar, Lenny Bruce, Mel Brooks, Woody Allen, and Joan Rivers. Here is a nineteenth-century America turning away from England for its literary and artistic inspiration, finding it instead in Washington Irving's Rip Van Winkle and his childhood recollections set in the Catskills; in James Fenimore Cooper's adventure romances which provided a pastoral history describing the shift from a colonial to a nationalist mentality; and in the canvases of Thomas Cole, Asher B. Durand, Frederick Church, and others that caught the grandeur of the wilderness and that gave texture, color, and form to Irving's and Cooper's imaginings. Here are the entrepreneurs and financiers who saw the Catskills as a way to strike it rich.

plundering the resources that had been likened to creation the Catskills tanneries that supplied the boots and saddles for Union troops in the Civil War and the bluestone quarries whose excavated rock became the curbs and streets of the fast growing Eastern Seaboard Here are the Catskills brought fully to life in all of their intensity beauty vastness and lunacy
