The Human Face Mary Katsikitis, 2012-12-06 James W Pennebaker The University of Texas at Austin At first glance a scientific book on the face doesn't make a great deal of sense After all the face is not a biological unit that falls into a specific medical specialty By the same token it is not part of a of a specific clear functional system that falls within the purview subdiscipline of psychology philosophy sociology or any other traditional area It seems that the only organizing principle of the face is that all humans have one and that it is central to the experience of being human As a social stimulus the face can signal emotions personality sex physical and mental health social status age and aspects of our thoughts intentions and our inner selves At various points in our lives we spend a tremendous amount of time and money for cosmetics cleansers medicines and occasionally surgery to enhance our face In the same way that a normative symmetrical face can attract praise and even adoration damage to the face through birth defects disease or injury is almost always stigmatizing Our faces then are social advertisements for who we are
