Clearinghouse Review ,2013-07 Developing Negotiation Skills in Sales Personnel David A. Stumm,1987-10-20 While sales negotiation is traditionally considered a formal process conducted by teams of buyers and sellers this handy reference recognizes that negotiating strategies and techniques are actually required in many instances in day to day selling activities as well and provides advice geared to the salesperson s specific daily needs The chapters present material in a factual step by step manner so it is easy to assimilate The work commences with an overview of the role and importance of skillful negotiation strategy in sales provides insight into the buyer s perspective and treats the strategic and psychological aspects of the interaction It then focuses on the negotiation tactics which are essential for the effective preparation application and closing of a sale While these concepts and skills are recognized as part of the formal negotiation process Stumm argues that most sales negotiations occur instead in daily informal conversations and presentations and he shows the reader how to recognize and use these situations for negotiating advantages

The Effectiveness of Negotiation Skills Training in Advancing the Status of Women in Male Dominated Fields Jerie Shaw, 2014 Gender equality has been linked to several positive organizational outcomes including improved overall organizational performance Dezs Ross 2012 Yet several fields in Canada such as technology and engineering remain male dominated Statistics Canada 2009 Men and women communicate differently and women's communication styles are sometimes perceived as weak particularly in male dominated fields Carli 2001 Women's preference for a more communal communication style also manifests in negotiations women are less likely to negotiate and when they do negotiate they are less direct and ask for less than men do Babcock Laschever 2003 In order to help women develop the skills they require to advance their status in male dominated fields the NSERC Chair for Women in Science and Engineering delivered five negotiation skills training workshops for women in science technology engineering and mathematics STEM in Ontario This thesis evaluates this training program using Kirkpatrick and Kirkpatrick's 2006 four level training evaluation model with questionnaires and qualitative semi structured follow up interviews as the main data collection methods Ultimately the thesis concluded that CWSE ON was successful in creating a training program that produced positive results at multiple levels of the Kirkpatrick model The program was particularly effective at encouraging participants to transfer their new skills back to the workplace and actually change their negotiation behaviours The implications of these findings for training professionals is explored in depth
