The Nervous System

Parts of the Nervous System

Neurons

- Neurons are the basic units of the nervous system
- They are responsible for transmitting information throughout the body
- They are made up of a cell body, dendrites, and an axon
- Dendrites receive signals from other neurons
- The cell body contains the nucleus and other organelles
- The axon carries signals away from the cell body

Glial Cells

- Glial cells are non-neuronal cells that provide support for neurons
- They are found in the brain and spinal cord
- They help to maintain the blood-brain barrier and provide nutrients to neurons
- They also help to remove debris and waste from the nervous system

Neurotransmitters

- Neurotransmitters are chemicals that transmit signals between neurons
- They are released from the axon terminals of a neuron
- They bind to receptors on the dendrites of another neuron
- This causes the release of more neurotransmitters, creating a signal cascade

Neural Pathways

- Neural pathways are the routes that signals take as they travel through the nervous system
- They are formed by the connections between neurons
- They can be simple or complex, depending on the number of neurons involved
- They are responsible for all the functions of the nervous system

Neural Plasticity

- Neural plasticity is the ability of the nervous system to change and adapt
- It allows the brain to recover from injury and learn new things
- It is the basis for all learning and memory
- It can be structural or functional, depending on the type of change

Neural Development

- Neural development is the process by which the nervous system grows and matures
- It begins in the embryo and continues throughout life
- It involves the differentiation of neural stem cells into various types of neurons and glial cells
- It is influenced by both genetic and environmental factors

Neural Degeneration

- Neural degeneration is the loss of neurons or the deterioration of neural function
- It can be caused by a variety of factors, including aging, disease, and injury
- It is a major cause of neurological disorders
- It can be prevented or slowed down by certain lifestyle changes
