Reading for Pleasure: International Perspectives Teresa Cremin, Sarah McGeown, 2025-03-19 Growing evidence of the vital role reading for pleasure plays in children and young people's academic outcomes and socio-emotional wellbeing has placed it high on the agenda in both educational policy and practice. This valuable collection draws upon a range of disciplinary perspectives and methodological approaches to explore how reading for pleasure is experienced and enacted and highlights the implications and benefits of such volitional reading in the lives and learning of children and young people. It offers contributions from leading international researchers on current evidence and literature within the field, identifying the causes and consequences of reading for pleasure and framing this within the context of understanding readers and applying this to developing effective pedagogical practices. With chapters examining how we may shape the reading experience, this book is divided into four sections: Understanding readers including factors such as motivation, gender, and identity; The nature of texts including fiction, sensory, and digital texts; Pedagogies and practices exploring agency, book talk, and reading aloud; Environments conducive to reading for pleasure including homes, school libraries, classrooms, and communities. Presenting diverse and interdisciplinary perspectives, this will be a key text for researchers, teacher educators, and policy makers who wish to become better informed in their thinking, discourse, and practice when supporting children and young people in learning to read for pleasure.

Still Reading Romance Josefine Smith, Kathleen W. Taylor, Kollman, 2025-04-01 In a world that commodifies feminism, is adapting romance novels for small and big screen projects, and the Romance Writers Association is evolving to a more inclusive representative group, it is imperative for researchers to reevaluate the cultural assumptions and gender norming work happening in the romance genre. It is time to question the cultural capital of traditional archetypes, explore the experience of romance readers, and question how romance and cultural studies researchers create quantitative, qualitative, and mixed methods research. This work centers around a data set collected with a revised version of Janice Radway's Reading the Romance survey that will be shared with all the authors of this anthology. By having access to this pool, authors will have the opportunity to explore different elements of reader experience and cultural norms in romance fiction and potentially reflect on changes since Janice Radway's seminal work. The norms and negotiations readers experience while consuming romance is especially interesting as romancelandia becomes a more mainstream part of popular culture with the popularity of Bridgerton and romance series like Ice Planet Barbarians exploding on BookTok. No other book in romance or popular culture studies identifies a data set as the connecting element, and to do so creates an exciting opportunity to create a more inclusive study of popular romance, offer truly interdisciplinary research on the question of how readers read romance, and generate diverse areas of future scholarship. This edited volume explores multiple issues in romance fiction based on survey data from real romance readers. An updated version of Janice Radway's influential survey looking at romance readers in the early 1980s, this time scholars explore romance readers' habits and attitudes in the twenty first century Each contributor in this volume uses the same survey data to make unique statements about gender intersectionality popular fiction and popular culture By using a common data set but approaching it from different perspectives this unique volume is able to apply multiple methodologies to the same subject
