Stalking White Crows Jack Crittenden,2019-12-14 How making up our minds and the makeup of our minds can help us live better and die better We live in a climate where feelings trump reason and evidence Lies are treated as alternative facts At the same time it seems our culture does not want us to treat altered or higher states of consciousness seriously Focusing both on evidence and on such states of consciousness can reorient our attitudes Jack Crittenden asks the reader to think about life after death about the basis of morality and the essence of spirituality about the meaning of happiness about the path of dying and about the proper role of work in our lives and how education connects to that role What if our memories thoughts and whole personality lived on after we died What if morality were based on reasons and evidence and not on God and sacred texts What if happiness lies not in what we think how we feel and what we long for but in living in the present and in the dying of the self itself Experiences of and the evidence on altered and higher states of consciousness can lead us to better lives and better deaths Western and Northern Europe June 1942-1945 Katja Happe, Barbara

Making Choices, Making Do Lois Rita Helmbold, 2022-10-14 Making Choices Making Do is a comparative study of Black and white working class women's survival strategies during the Great Depression Based on analysis of employment histories and Depression era interviews of 1,340 women in Chicago Cleveland Philadelphia and South Bend and letters from domestic workers Lois Helmbold discovered that Black women lost work more rapidly and in greater proportions The benefits that white women accrued because of structural racism meant they avoided the utter destitution that more commonly swallowed their Black peers When let go from a job a white woman was more successful in securing a less desirable job while Black women especially older Black women were pushed out of the labor force entirely Helmbold found that working class women practiced the same strategies but institutionalized racism in employment housing and relief assured that Black women worked harder but fared worse Making Choices Making Do strives to fill the gap in the labor history of women both Black and white The book will challenge the limits of segregated histories and encourage more comparative analyses
