The House at Capo d'Orso Sebastiano Brandolini,2023-05-02 Rocks wind sea and sky frame a house on the Sardinian coast and the house frames a family s life and art suspended in memory How does a house shape experience How does architecture establish a practice of living Architect Sebastiano Brandolini invites readers on a meditative tour of his family s house on the Sardinian coast describing everything from the geology of the rocks beneath to the history of the surrounding villages to the way the shifting light measures the day More than the story of a single summer home written by an accomplished architect this is a study of how place the built environment and daily practice make up our lives at the most minute level of detail Recalling the essays of Walter Benjamin Bill Bryson Rebecca Solnit and Lawrence Weschler Brandolini s writing weaves literature art history and the transformation of Sardinia since the 1960s into a single fabric The House at Capo d Orso is not only a study of architecture and life in the built environment but of family life and the way the Brandolini family adapted themselves to the house they built For Sebastiano Brandolini s parents this meant letting their house influence their work in poetry and visual art and this book attends carefully to the way houses can guide the creative process The wind and water of Sardinia change more than the rocks and trees they invite the imagination itself to form new shapes Certain places or perhaps objects in the interior of Sardinia have left such a deep impression on my mind that I cannot rid myself them becoming obsessions that give me pleasure and prompt reflections For us obligatory positivists of the twenty first century there is something enigmatic and incomprehensible about these objects They oscillate between architecture archeology geology and landscape but do not belong to any of these categories as soon as we think we ve found a plausible classification we are assailed by doubts and qualifications from The House at Capo d Orso

Schooled for the Future? Karen Valentin,2006-02-01 Schooled for the future offers an ethnographically rich account about squatter families in Kathmandu and their struggles to improve their living conditions and create a better future through education Examining how people children and adults experience and respond to policy initiatives aimed at improving their life the book discusses the paradoxes inherent in modern schooling Firstly schooling promises social justice and equal opportunities yet it also contributes to the reproduction of social inequalities by strengthening existing class divisions and by producing a new category of unschooled people Secondly within the context of the family schooling is attributed an economic and symbolic value but it is also considered a potential threat to family values based on generational hierarchy and caste identity Through detailed ethnographic accounts the author demonstrates how urban poor families experience the schooling process ambivalently both as a source of alienation and inferiority as well as a source of self esteem and sense of progress Acknowledging the interconnect edness between global national and local forces framing and informing processes of education the book thus sheds light on the complex relationship between educational policy and everyday life experiences of the urban poor in Kathmandu a hitherto understudied segment of the Nepalese society
