Testing and Assessment in Translation and Interpreting Studies Claudia V. Angelelli, Holly E. Jacobson, 2009 Testing and Assessment in Translation and Interpreting Studies examines issues of measurement that are essential to translation and interpreting Conceptualizing testing both as a process and a product the collection of papers explores these issues across languages and settings including university classrooms research projects the private sector and professional associations The authors have approached their chapters from different perspectives using a variety of methods some focusing on very specific variables and others providing a much broader overview of the issues at hand Chapters range from a discussion of the measurement of text cohesion in translation the measurement of interactional competence in interpreting the use of a particular scale to measure interpreters' renditions to the application of a specific approach to grading or general program assessment such as interpreter or translator certification at the national level or program admissions processes These studies point to the need for greater integration of research and practice in the specific area of testing and assessment and are a welcome addition to the field

Topics in Signed Language Interpreting Terry Janzen, 2005-10-26 Interpreters who work with signed languages and those who work strictly with spoken languages share many of the same issues regarding their training skill sets and fundamentals of practice Yet interpreting into and from signed languages presents unique challenges for the interpreter who works with language that must be seen rather than heard The contributions in this volume focus on topics of interest to both students of signed language interpreting and practitioners working in community conference and education settings Signed languages dealt with include American Sign Language Langue des Signes Québécoise and Irish Sign Language although interpreters internationally will find the discussion in each chapter relevant to their own language context Topics concern theoretical and practical components of the interpreter's work including interpreters' approaches to language and meaning their role on the job and in the communities within which they work dealing with language variation and consumer preferences and Deaf interpreters as professionals in the field

Assessing legal interpreter quality through testing and certification: The Qualitas Project Cynthia Giambruno, 2014 Respect for the procedural rights of any individual involved in police or judicial matters is a basic tenet of a modern and sound system of justice Providing legal interpreting services to suspects defendants victims and witnesses who are not proficient in the language in which legal matters are being conducted is a broadly accepted practice throughout the EU However it is only recently that emphasis has been placed on the quality of the services provided EU Directive 2010/64/EU through its mandate for quality in legal interpreter and translating services has provided the impetus needed to reexamine current practices and work towards common standards and practices across the EU that would enhance mutual trust and allow for reciprocity and the sharing of expertise This volume reflects the deliberations of a panel of experts from the fields of legal interpreting testing theory and public policy who agree that the most effective means of ensuring quality is through testing and certification It addresses issues related to the assessment of the skill sets and knowledge required to ensure high quality legal interpreting and offers practical guidance and advice on the design and administration of a valid and reliable certification process
