The Rise and Fall of the Japanese Imperial Naval Air Service Peter J. Edwards,2020-01-31 This book describes in considerable detail the people events ships and aircraft that shaped the Air Service from its origins in the late 19th century to its demise in 1945 The formative years began when a British Naval Mission was established in Japan in 1867 to advise on the development of balloons for naval purposes After the first successful flights of fixed wing aircraft in the USA and Europe the Japanese navy sent several officers to train in Europe as pilots and imported a steady stream of new models to evaluate During World War One Japan became allied with the UK and played a significant part in keeping the German fleets of ships and submarines at bay in the Pacific and Indian Oceans However in the international naval treaties that followed they felt betrayed since the number of capital ships battleships and cruisers that they were allowed was below those of the USA and the UK Aircraft carriers were not included so a program of carrier building was started and continued until World War Two At the same time they developed an aircraft industry and at the beginning of war their airplanes were comparable and in some instances superior to those of the British and Americans Much prewar experience was gained during Japans invasion of China but their continued anger with America festered and resulted in their becoming allied with Germany Italy and the Vichy France during World War Two There followed massive successful attacks on Pearl Harbor the Philippines the Southern Islands Port Darwin and New Guinea The British were decimated and the USA recoiled at the onslaught taking over a year to regroup and take the war to the Imperial Japanese forces Throughout the conflict many sea battles were fought and the name Zero became legendary When Japan eventually capitulated after the Atomic bombs were dropped the Japanese Imperial Air Service was disbanded Predicasts F & S Index ,1991 Wings of the Rising Sun Mark Chambers,2018-11-29 A fascinating insight into how the Allies learned about the capabilities and limitations of the Imperial Japanese Naval Air Force and Japanese Army Air Force through flight testing and evaluation of enemy equipment In the Pacific War s early years Japanese air power was dominant The only way for the Allies to defeat their enemy was to know it This made the task of maintaining productive intelligence gathering efforts on Japan imperative Establishing Technical Air Intelligence Units in the Pacific Theatre and the Technical Air Intelligence Center in Washington DC the Allies were able to begin to reveal the secrets of Japanese air power through extensive flight testing and evaluation of captured enemy aircraft and equipment These provided an illuminating perspective on Japanese aircraft and aerial weapon design philosophy and manufacturing practice

Fully illustrated throughout with a wealth of previously unpublished photographs Mark Chambers explores Allied efforts to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of Japanese air power during the war years and how this intelligence helped them achieve victory in the Pacific

Fighters of the Dying Sun Justo Miranda, 2021-07-11 The first B 29 flew over Tokyo on 1 November 1944 It was a photographic reconnaissance aircraft ironically named Tokyo Rose The Ki 44 fighters of the 47th Sentai took off to intercept it but as it turned out the Superfortress flew at such an altitude and speed that they could not reach it The Ki 44 II Otsu had been specifically designed for this type of interception and could reach the astonishing rate of climb of 5 000 m in four minutes however it was not good enough During the following ten months a devastating bombing campaign of thousands of Superfortress destroyed 67 Japanese cities and half of Tokyo The cultural shock and the political consequences were huge when it was realised that the Japanese industry was not able to produce the specially heat and stress resistant metallic alloys that were required to manufacture the turbo superchargers needed by the fighters in charge of defending the Japanese mainland They lacked the essential chromium and molybdenum metals to harden the steel This fact thwarted the manufacturing of numerous advanced projects of both conventional fighters and those derived from the transfer of German technology fitted with turbojets and rocket engines They are thoroughly described in this book

J2M Raiden and N1K1/2 Shiden/Shiden-Kai Aces Yasuho Izawa, Tony Holmes, 2016-04-21 Although seen as a replacement for the A6M Zero sea carrier based fighter the Mitsubishi J2M Raiden was actually designed as a land based naval interceptor optimised for speed rather than manoeuvrability Engine cooling problems for its Mitsubishi Kasai 23 engine airflow and flight control issues plagued the Raiden's development but despite these production delays aces Sadaaki Akamatsu Yoshihiro Aoki Susumu Ito and Susumu Ishihara all claimed significant scores in the Raiden Kawanishi's N1K family of fighters were privately developed by the manufacturer from the N1K Kyofu floatplane fighter Again plagued by structural and engine maladies the N1K1 J Shiden eventually entered frontline service in time to see considerable action in the doomed defence of the Philippines in October 1944 Despite suffering heavy losses the units equipped with new fighter proved that the N1K could more than hold its own against P 38s and F6Fs The improved N1K2 J Shiden KAI started to reach the frontline by late 1944 in time for defence of the Home Islands Here it proved to be the best IJN fighter of the war

A Short History of Transport in Japan from Ancient Times to the Present John Andrew Black, 2022-03-18 A Short History of Transport in Japan from Ancient Times to the Present is a unique study the first by a Western scholar to place the long term development of Japanese infrastructure alongside an analysis of its evolving political economy Drawing from New Institutional Economics Black offers a historically informed critique of contemporary planning using the example of Japan s historical institutions their particular biases and the power they have exerted over national and local transport to identify how reformed institutional arrangements might develop more sustainable and equitable transport services With chapters addressing each major form of transport Black examines the predominant role of institutions and individuals from seventeenth century shoguns to post war planners in transforming Japan s maritime infrastructure its roads and waterways and its adoption of rail and air transport Using a multidisciplinary comparative and chronological approach the book consults a range of technical cultural and political sources to tease out these interactions between society and technology This spirited new contribution to transport studies will attract readers interested in institutional power the history of transport and the development of future infrastructure as well as those with a general interest in Japan Flying Magazine ,1972-03 Bibliography of Scientific and Industrial Reports ,1946-10
