Organic Production Of Pepper Ginger And Turmeric:

Organic Production of Pepper, Ginger and Turmeric Gowri Vijayan, 2019-03-29 Black pepper is one of the most important spice crops of India. It is produced mainly in Kerala, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu of Southern India. Organic cultivation focuses basically on isolation. Pepper when grown as an intercrop should still follow the conventions. Therefore a 25 m wide isolation belt is to be made around the conventional production area of the plantation. The produce from this isolated belt is not to be considered as organic. In the case of sloppy terrain care has to be taken to divert runoff water and drift from neighboring farms. Ginger is one of the important spice crops used for its aromatic and medicinal properties. It belongs to the Zingiberaceae family and is believed to be a native of south east Asia. Ginger is commercially sold in rhizome state. Turmeric, the Indian saffron, is one of the most important spice crops of India. Its culinary and medicinal merit finds its use in drug, cosmetic and food industry in India. Organic Production of Black Pepper, Ginger and Turmeric Gowri Vijayan, 2013-11 Black pepper is one of the most important spice crops of India. Organic cultivation of black pepper focuses basically on isolation. Ginger is another important spice crop used for its aromatic and medicinal properties. It belongs to the Zingiberaceae family and is believed to be a native of south east Asia. Turmeric also belongs to the family Zingiberaceae and it is an herbaceous perennial. India is the largest producer of turmeric in the world, followed by Thailand, Central America, Latin America and Taiwan.

The Agronomy and Economy of Turmeric and Ginger K.P. Prabhakaran Nair, 2013-02-20 Turmeric has been used as a medicine, a condiment and a dye since at least 600 B.C. while ginger has been used extensively throughout history for its medicinal purposes. The Agronomy and Economy of Turmeric and Ginger brings these two important plants together in one reference book explaining their history, production techniques and nutritional and medicinal properties in detail. This book is intuitively organized by plant and use, allowing quick access to information. It puts the uniquely Indian use and history of turmeric and ginger plants into a global context of production and economic aspects. It explores the plants from a botanical perspective and goes into details of their chemical composition as well. Rounding out the book are chapters on disease and pest control issues. The book is a valuable resource for those involved in the production and marketing of these plants as well as those looking for more information on the medicinal and nutritional properties of turmeric and ginger. The first book to bring together extensive information about turmeric and ginger. Incorporates medicinal, nutritional and agricultural aspects of the two plants. Offers a global perspective. Towards Sustainable Consumption and Life Styles Suresh Misra, Sapna Chadah, 2018-01-01 Consumption is the reason why anything gets produced However the present consumption and production patterns together are reason for all man made stress on natural environment Consumerism may be the single greatest threat to environmental and social stability on the planet If global society is to address the many environmental and other sustainability challenges that confront us in the twenty first century such as climate change and water resources it will be necessary to make significant changes in our patterns of consumption production and distribution Sustainable consumption is not necessarily about consuming less it is about consuming better i.e. more efficiently with less risk to our health and environment Changing our course and finding alternative pathways though not easy but is the only way to protect our planet There is a growing realization that while changes in production and distribution are formidable the proposed solutions may not succeed unless it is possible to persuade individuals and households to change their patterns of consumption to make them more sustainable We need a renewed and positive focus on the connection between lifestyles consumption and aspirations cultures and social norms Then we'll have the potential to mobilize and unlock people's consumption and lifestyles as real drivers for change and sustainable development The present volume consists of papers contributed by well known experts that seek to explain the perspectives on sustainable consumption highlight various issues underpinning sustainable consumption and provides solutions to atleast some of the problems if not all The book will not only be useful to policy makers but also to academicians practitioners students and all those who are interested in consumer welfare
