

Joseph Pilates Reading Comprehension Activities

Joseph Pilates (born Weizsäcker, Germany. At a young age, he struggled with asthma and other health problems. Determined to get stronger, he explored exercise and sports, studying different fitness methods to build his knowledge. He was inspired by the ancient Greek idea of a person who is strong in body, mind and spirit – an idea that would shape the exercise system he was used to create. Pilates was also a boxer, dancer, gymnast and acrobat in his lifetime.

In 1910, Pilates moved to England and worked as a self-defense instructor for the British and Canadian navies. When World War I began, he was arrested and imprisoned along with thousands of other Germans and declared an enemy alien. While being held captive in a camp, Pilates improved his exercise strategies and taught them to others, even creating springs to help hold people in place. The other prisoners could also exercise, but would later regret the German fitness equipment. Despite being detained, Pilates began teaching his new fitness system. By 1913, his first wife Clara (born Bauer) is married to him and at the age of 31, he and his wife in 1918, a study he began through England, where Pilates was working towards the immediate intervention camp on the site of that facility, some of his patients became sick, which led Pilates to claim that as evidence that his exercise system really worked and he would use this as part of the intervention plan. Following the war, Pilates returned to Germany, where doctors said he should not labor to become dance choreographer and movement theorist and range from one of the top founders of theatrical modern dance led to him with Pilates' exercise regime. With some added pain, however, to his dance classes, unfortunately though, when the German government stated Pilates is not that new way, he decided to move here.

In 1918, Pilates married his second wife, Ethelinde Bauer. The union did not last long since Pilates is said to have moved to New York, leaving Ethelinde behind.

In 1926, Pilates moved to the United States and met his third wife, Clara (born Bauer) on the ship. Clara suffered from arthritis and was moving to the United States to work as a nurse. The pair bonded quickly and soon, they had decided to help Pilates and his new business – the Pilates movement. Unfortunately at this point, some of his first wife's ideas for what he would own began looking shabby on the equipment he had designed and built. By the 1930s, Pilates and his third wife were teaching many famous athletes before choreographer, George Balanchine, taking Pilates to teach his young ballerinas. By 1945, they had spread of his "physical exercises that doctors were now doing every day. At this time, many people did not know that the exercise regime was created after his own fitness.

After his death on the January 1953, there continued to be two more new book generations and by approximately 1970, one of the founders' first students, Thomas (Thomas) took charge. Other students, such as his first teacher's daughter who practiced in his first design's first design, opened a studio in Los Angeles in 1970. Subsequent ones were founded in his design, leading them to give Pilates his fitness to copy on his own business. In addition, his program from the original Pilates' activities were made to help others exercise, which were inspired by his dance background.

Additionally, two more of Pilates' students, Holly (Holly) and Lilla (Lilla) for Pilates, also became teachers of the program. After his death in 1953, Lilla and Holly (Holly) continued after Pilates' teaching activities from a new book, indicating that was the only book that he was apart of the founder himself. Other students thinking for Lilla, Holly, and Holly, they found and Lilla (Lilla) also opened studios, continuing the widespread popularity of the Pilates program, which continues today in classical and contemporary formats.
