Goode, 2015-03-17 The Evolution of Washington DC is a striking volume featuring select pieces of the extraordinary collection of Washingtoniana donated by Albert H Small to the George Washington University in 2011 It showcases treasures such as an 1860 lithograph of the equestrian statue of Andrew Jackson in front of the White House and a contemporary print of old Potomac River steamboats Other unique pieces include early designs for the White House the Capitol and the Washington Monument as well as presidential portraits and Civil War memorabilia Each object from architectural plans and topographical maps to letters and advertisements tells a fascinating story and together they illustrate the history of our nation's capital and indeed our nation itself Washington History, 2003 The Roots of Rural

Capitalism Christopher Clark, 1990 Between the late colonial period and the Civil War the countryside of the American northeast was largely transformed Rural New England changed from a society of independent farmers relatively isolated from international markets into a capitalist economy closely linked to the national market an economy in which much farming and manufacturing output was produced by wage labor Using the Connecticut Valley as an example The Roots of Rural Capitalism demonstrates how this important change came about Christopher Clark joins the active debate on the transition to capitalism with a fresh interpretation that integrates the insights of previous studies with the results of his detailed research Largely rejecting the assumption of recent scholars that economic change can be explained principally in terms of markets he constructs a broader social history of the rural economy and traces the complex interactions of social structure household strategies gender relations and cultural values that propelled the countryside from one economic system to another Above all he shows that people of rural Massachusetts were not passive victims of changes forced upon them but actively created a new economic world as they tried to secure their livelihoods under changing demographic and economic circumstances The emergence of rural capitalism Clark maintains was not the result of a single transition rather it was an accretion of new institutions and practices that occurred over two generations and in two broad chronological phases It is his singular contribution to demonstrate the coexistence of a family based household economy persisting well into the nineteenth century and the market oriented system of production and exchange that is generally held to have emerged full blown by the eighteenth century He is adept at describing the clash of values sustaining both economies and the ways in which the rural household based economy through a process he calls involution ultimately gave way to a new order His analysis of the distinctive role of rural women in this transition constitutes a strong new element in the study of gender as a factor in the
