Low-Power Wireless Sensor Networks Jukka Suhonen,Mikko Kohvakka,Ville Kaseva,Timo D. Hämäläinen,Marko Hännikäinen,2012-01-14 Wireless sensor network WSN is an ad hoc network technology comprising even thousands of autonomic and self organizing nodes that combine environmental sensing data processing and wireless networking The applications for sensor networks range from home and industrial environments to military uses Unlike the traditional computer networks a WSN is application oriented and deployed for a specific task WSNs are data centric which means that messages are not send to individual nodes but to geographical locations or regions based on the data content A WSN node is typically battery powered and characterized by extremely small size and low cost As a result the processing power memory and energy resources of an individual sensor node are limited However the feasibility of a WSN lies on the collaboration between the nodes A reference WSN node comprises a Micro Controller Unit MCU having few Million Instructions Per Second MIPS processing speed tens of kilobytes program memory few kilobytes data memory In addition the node contains a short range radio and a set of sensors Supply power is typically obtained with small batteries Assuming a target lifetime of one year using AA size batteries the available power budget is around 1 mW This book covers the low power WSNs services ranging from hardware platforms and communication protocols to network deployment and sensor data collection and actuation The implications of resource constraints and expected performance in terms of throughput reliability and latency are explained As a case study this book presents experiments with low energy TUTWSN technology to illustrate the possibilities and limitations of WSN applications
