sports organizations get involved more socially and community based aiming to enlarge their fan base and to build a favourable reputation By coining vitally important bonds and creating valuable content by raising awareness for social needs sports teams enhance awareness and ingrain themselves into a city or region It is not unusual that professional sports organizations nowadays follow the device doing what is expected by the society Indeed societies expect proximity and demand that professional sports franchises pay back the society for being a loyal supporter through donations creating awareness for charitable causes or player appearances The example of the Toronto Marlies Hockey Club demonstrates that not only large or global business enterprises have a broad CSR scheme in place but also sports franchises deal with socially responsible acting in different areas Representing an unique example due to the ownership situation and geographical placement of the franchise the Marlies accomplish all five areas CSR is served in today although only the area community activities is served by the Marlies organization semi independently As property of the MLSE the Toronto Marlies moreover contribute mainly to the activities of the MLSE TeamUp Foundation and execute the overridden MLSE CSR scheme According the results of the SWOT analysis improvements regarding their social activities scheme suggest to consider females within scope of support as well as following politically addressed community activities In addition to that a broader employee welfare concept benefits the reputation of the Toronto Marlies within the MLSE organization as employees seeing the Marlies only as a diving board Last but not least using university research through their internship program provides the possibility to know current developments in marketing branding and CSR from first hand which can be used as an advantage towards the other six professional sports organizations in Toronto

The Hollywood Reporter ,2008 Tragedy in Aurora Tom Diaz,2019-10-31 Tragedy in Aurora is about the 2012 murder of budding sports journalist Jessica Jessi Redfield Ghawi in a public mass shooting and the widening circle of pain it inflicted on her family friends police medical first responders and others The book is at the same time a deep examination of the causes and potential cures of the quintessential 21st century American sickness public mass shootings At the heart of that examination is an unpacking of America s deep polarization and political gridlock It addresses head on the question of why Why is American gun violence so different from other countries Why does nothing seem to change The Parkland kids inspired hope of change But the ultimate questions stubbornly remain what should what can and what will Americans do to reduce gun violence Tragedy in Aurora argues that the answer lies in a conscious cultural redefinition of American civic order Over recent decades America has defined a cultural new normal about guns and gun violence Americans express formalistic dismay after every public mass shooting But many accept gun violence as an inevitable even necessary and to some laudable part of what it means to be American Although Americans claim to be shocked with each new outrage so far they have failed to coalesce around an effective way to reduce gun death and injury The debate is bogged down in polarized and profoundly ideological political and cultural argument Meanwhile America continues to lead the globe in its pandemic levels of gun deaths and injuries Combined with the cynical learned helplessness of its politicians the result is gridlock and a growing roll of victims of carnage Is there a path out of this cultural and political gridlock Tragedy in Aurora argues that if America is to reduce gun violence it must expand the debate and confront the fundamental question of who are we Tom Diaz gives a new understanding of American culture and the potential for change offered by the growing number and ongoing organization of victims and survivors of gun violence Without conscious cultural change the book argues there is little prospect of effective laws or public policy to reduce gun violence in general and public mass shootings in particular Sports Business Management George Foster, Norm O'Reilly, Antonio Dávila, 2016-01-08
