All About Super Bowl

Super Bowl is a game of American football played once a year, usually in February and is considered the highlight of the National Football League (NFL) season. The NFL has many other games, but only one is the most important. The winning team of these conference championships is Super Bowl. The Super Bowl is a game.

Formation of the NFL

The NFL was formed in the 1920s with football teams spread across America. Until then, there was no professional American football league in the US and had no place to sell other teams from elsewhere. By the 1920s, a series of business people started taking steps and some other arrangements for the NFL for a new league that would include teams from other teams and cities. The American football league (NFL) was created about forty years after the NFL and would become a professional.

The First Super Bowl Meeting

There was a lot of competition between the NFL and AFL for many years in 1960, the two leagues had discussions about merging to make one league although they didn't officially join together until 1970. In the meantime, it was agreed that a game between the champions of the NFL and AFL would take place each year.

In January 1967, the first Super Bowl meeting took place between the two professional leagues and was held at the Caesars Palace. The game was played at the Caesars Palace in front of a crowd of over 100,000 spectators and a TV audience of around 60 million viewers. This was the first game that would become known as 'Super Bowl', a phrase suggested by Lamar Hunt.
