Millions Fed Proven Successes In Agricultural Development:

Bref aperçu de Millions Fed David J. Spielman, Rajul Pandya-Lorch, 2009 Learning from successes in agricultural development is now more urgent than ever Progress in feeding the world's billions has slowed while the challenge of meeting future food needs remains enormous and is subject to new uncertainties in the global food and agricultural systems In the late 1950s around a billion people were estimated to go hungry every day Scientists policymakers farmers and ordinary people initiated a concerted push to boost agricultural production and productivity in developing countries Great strides were also made in improving the quality of food and the ability of vulnerable people to access food needed for survival All these efforts have done more than just feed millions They have also demonstrated that agriculture can be a key driver of growth and development for many of the world's poorest countries Millions Fed David J. Spielman, Rajul Pandya-Lorch, 2009 Humanity has made enormous progress in the past 50 years toward eliminating hunger and malnutrition Some five billion people more than 80 percent of the world's population have enough food to live healthy productive lives Agricultural development has contributed significantly to these gains while also fostering economic growth and poverty reduction in some of the world's poorest countries Proven Successes in Agricultural Development David J. Spielman, Rajul Pandya-Lorch, 2010-01-01 The world has made enormous progress in the past 50 years toward eliminating hunger and malnutrition While in 1960 roughly 30 percent of the world's population suffered from hunger and malnutrition today less than 20 percent do some five billion people now have enough food to live healthy productive lives Agricultural development has contributed significantly to these gains by increasing food supplies reducing food prices and creating new income and employment opportunities for some of the world's poorest people This book examines where why and how past interventions in agricultural development have succeeded It carefully reviews the policies programs and investments in agricultural development that have reduced hunger and poverty across Africa Asia and Latin America over the past half century The 19 successes included here are described in in depth case studies that synthesize the evidence on the intervention's impact on agricultural productivity and food security evaluate the rigor with which the evidence was collected and assess the tradeoffs inherent in each success Together these chapters provide evidence of what works in agricultural development Rural and urban linkages: Operation flood's role in India's dairy development Kenda Cunningham, Highlights of recent IFPRI food policy research in Ethiopia 2014 International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI), In Pursuit of an African Green Revolution Keijiro Otsuka, Donald F. Larson, 2015-11-24 This book explores recent experiences in the effort to bring about a Green Revolution in Sub Saharan Africa SSA The chapters focus on rice and maize which are promising and strategic smallholder crops Significantly we find that an African Rice Revolution has already begun in many irrigated areas using Asian type modern varieties chemical fertilizer and improved management practices Further we find that the same technological package significantly increases the productivity and profitability of rice farming in rainfed areas as well We also find evidence that that management training when done well can boost productivity on smallholder farms This suggests that African governments can accelerate the pace of Africa s Rice Revolution by strengthening extension capacity The story for maize is wholly different where most farmers use local varieties apply little chemical fertilizer and obtain very low yields However in the highly populated highlands of Kenya a number of farmers have adopted high yielding hybrid maize varieties and chemical fertilizer as was the case in the Asian Green Revolution apply manure produced by stall fed cows as was the case during the British Agricultural Revolution and keep improved cows or cross breeds from European cows and local stock as was the case of the Indian White Revolution We conclude that while rice in Africa has benefited from an Asian Green Revolution strategy that emphasizes modern seeds inputs and focused knowledge transfers the success of Africa s Maize Revolution will require a different system approach based on hybrid maize chemical and organic fertilizers and stall fed cross bred cows

International Development Bruce Currie-Alder, Ravi Kanbur, David M. Malone, Rohinton Medhora, 2014 A central premise is that an objective and universally accepted measure of success in development and paths to it does not exist Technology and Innovation for Sustainable Development Rob Vos, 2015-12-17 This book is available as open access through the Bloomsbury Open Access programme and is available on bloomsburycollections.com Continuation along current development pathways is not sustainable Available technology and production practices and the consumption patterns of modern societies are leading to global warming and ecological destruction Business as usual is not an option There is an urgent need to find a new development paradigm that ensures environmental sustainability while managing to provide now and in the future a decent livelihood for all of humankind In Technology and Innovation for Sustainable Development experts in the area provide a variety of insights about the technical transformation needed for sustainable development It spells out the behavioural and policy changes that would need to accompany the next technological transformation taking into account the complexity of inducing technological change in the energy and agricultural sectors The assessment suggests that this will require major but doable improvements in national innovation systems and major but affordable shifts in investment patterns and related macroeconomic adjustments

Food Policy for Developing Countries Per Pinstrup-Andersen, Derrill D. Watson II, 2011-09-15 Despite technological advances in agriculture nearly a billion people around the world still suffer from hunger and poor nutrition while a billion are overweight or obese This imbalance highlights the need not only to focus on food production but also to implement successful food policies In this new textbook intended to be used with the three volumes of Case Studies in Food Policy for Developing Countries also from Cornell the 2001 World Food Prize laureate Per Pinstrup Andersen and his colleague Derrill D Watson II analyze international food policies and discuss how such policies can and must address the many complex challenges that lie ahead in view of continued poverty globalization climate change food price volatility natural resource degradation demographic and dietary transitions and increasing interests in local and organic food production Food Policy for Developing Countries offers a social entrepreneurship approach to food policy analysis Calling on a wide variety of disciplines including economics nutrition sociology anthropology environmental science medicine and geography the authors show how all elements in the food system function together Faith and the Future of the Countryside Jill Hopkinson,2014-08-01 A practical and theological handbook for rural ministry Addressing the concerns of rural communities today it will help you understand key issues in the context of mission and respond both pastorally and prophetically Intellectual property rights, technology diffusion, and agricultural development Spielman, David J.,Ma, Xingliang,2014-04-30 The role of intellectual property rights IPRs has been extensively debated in the literature on technology transfers and agricultural production in developing countries However few studies offer cross country evidence on how IPRs affect yield growth for example by incentivizing private sector investment in cultivar improvement We address this knowledge gap by testing technology diffusion patterns for six major crops using a unique dataset for the period 1961 2010 and an Arellano Bond linear dynamic panel data estimation approach Findings indicate that both biological and legal forms of IPRs tend to promote yield gap convergence between developed and developing countries although effects vary between crops Agricultural Systems: Agroecology and Rural Innovation for Development Sieglinde Snapp,Barry Pound,2017-02-17 Agricultural Systems Second Edition is a comprehensive text for developing sustainable farming systems It presents a synthetic overview of the emerging area of agroecology applications to transforming farming systems and supporting rural innovation with particular emphasis on how research can be harnessed for sustainable agriculture The inclusion of research theory and examples using the principles of cropping system design allows students to gain a unique understanding of the technical biological ecological economic and sociological aspects of farming systems science for rural livelihoods This book explores topics such as re inventing farming systems principles and practice of agroecology agricultural change and low input technology ecologically based nutrient management participatory breeding for developing improved and relevant crops participatory livestock research for development gender and agrarian inequality at the local scale the nature of agricultural innovation and outreach to support rural innovation The extensive coverage of subjects is complemented with integrated references and a companion website making this book essential reading for courses in international agricultural systems and management sustainable agricultural management and cropping systems This book will be a valuable resource for students of agricultural science environmental engineering and rural planning researchers and scientists in agricultural development agencies and practitioners of agricultural development in government extension programs development agencies and NGOs Provides students with an enhanced understanding of how research can be harnessed for sustainable agriculture Incorporates social biological chemical and geographical aspects important to agroecology Addresses social and development issues related to farming systems The Locavore's Dilemma Pierre Desrochers,Hiroko Shimizu,2012-06-05 A new generation of food activists has come to believe that sustainable farming and eating local are the way to solve a host of perceived problems with our modern food supply system By combining healthy eating and a high standard of environmental stewardship these locavores think we can also deliver important economic benefits and increase food security within local economies But after a thorough review of the evidence economic geographer Pierre Desrochers and policy analyst Hiroko Shimizu have concluded these claims are mistaken In The Locavore's Dilemma they explain the history science and economics of food supply to reveal what locavores miss or misunderstand the real environmental impacts of agricultural production the drudgery of subsistence farming and the essential role large scale industrial producers play in making food more available varied affordable and nutritionally rich than ever before in history At best they show locavorism is a well meaning marketing fad among the world's most privileged consumers At worst it constitutes a dangerous distraction from solving serious global food issues Deliberately provocative but based on scrupulous research and incontrovertible scientific evidence The Locavore's Dilemma proves that Our modern food supply chain is a superior alternative that has evolved through constant competition and ever more rigorous efficiency A world food chain characterized by free trade and the absence of agricultural subsidies would deliver lower prices and more variety in a manner that is both economically and environmentally more sustainable There is no need to feel guilty for not joining the locavores on their crusade Eating globally not only locally is the way to save the planet

The Oxford Handbook of Africa and Economics Célestin Monga, Justin Yifu Lin, 2015 A popular myth about the travails of Africa holds that the continent's long history of poor economic performance reflects the inability of its leaders and policymakers to fulfill the long list of preconditions to be met before sustained growth can be achieved These conditions are said to vary from the necessary quantity and quality of physical and human capital to the appropriate institutions and business environments While intellectually charming and often elegantly formulated that conventional wisdom is actually contradicted by historical evidence and common sense It also suggests a form of intellectual mimicry that posits a unique path to prosperity for all countries regardless of their level of development and economic structure In fact the argument underlining that reasoning is tautological and the policy prescriptions derived from it are fatally teleological low income countries are by definition those where such ingredients are missing None of today's high income countries started its growth process with the required and complete list of growth ingredients Unless one truly believes that the continent of Africa and most developing countries are ruled predominantly if not exclusively by plutocrats with a high propensity for sadomasochism the conventional view must be re-examined debated and questioned This volume the second of the Oxford Handbook of Africa and Economics reassesses the economic policies and practices observed across the continent since independence It offers a collection of analyses by some of the leading economists and development thinkers of our time and reflects a wide range of perspectives and viewpoints Africa's emergence as a potential economic powerhouse in the years and decades ahead amply justifies the scope and ambition of the book

Technology and Innovation for Sustainable Development Rob Vos, 2015-12-17 This book is available as open access through the Bloomsbury Open Access programme and is available on bloomsburycollections.com

Continuation along current development pathways is not sustainable Available technology and production practices and the consumption patterns of modern societies are leading to global warming and ecological destruction Business as usual is not an option There is an urgent need to find a new development paradigm that ensures environmental sustainability while managing to provide now and in the future a decent livelihood for all of humankind In Technology and Innovation for Sustainable Development experts in the area provide a variety of insights about the technical transformation needed for sustainable development It spells out the behavioural and policy changes that would need to accompany the next technological transformation taking into account the complexity of inducing technological change in the energy and agricultural sectors The assessment suggests that this will require major but doable improvements in national innovation systems and major but affordable shifts in investment patterns and related macroeconomic adjustments

Sustainable Energy Solutions in Agriculture Jochen Bundschuh,Guangnan Chen,2014-03-07 Sustainability in agriculture and associated primary industries which are both energy intensive is crucial for the development of any country Increasing scarcity and resulting high fossil fuel prices combined with the need to significantly reduce greenhouse gas emissions make the improvement of energy efficient farming and increased use of renewable energy a high priority

Handbook on the Globalisation of Agriculture Guy M. Robinson,Doris A. Carson,2015-06-29 This Handbook provides insights to the ways in which globalisation is affecting the whole agri food system from farms to the consumer It covers themes including the physical basis of agriculture the influence of trade policies the nature of globalisation

Economics of Land Degradation and Improvement - A Global Assessment for Sustainable Development Ephraim Nkonya,Alisher Mirzabaev,Joachim von Braun,2015-11-11 This volume deals with land degradation which is occurring in almost all terrestrial biomes and agro ecologies in both low and high income countries and is stretching to about 30% of the total global land area About three billion people reside in these degraded lands However the impact of land degradation is especially severe on livelihoods of the poor who heavily depend on natural resources The annual global cost of land degradation due to land use and cover change LUCC and lower cropland and rangeland productivity is estimated to be about 300 billion USD Sub Saharan Africa SSA accounts for the largest share 22% of the total global cost of land degradation Only about 38% of the cost of land degradation due to LUCC which accounts for 78% of the US 300 billion loss is borne by land users and the remaining share 62% is borne by consumers of ecosystem services off the farm The results in this volume indicate that reversing land degradation trends makes both economic sense and has multiple social and environmental benefits On average one US dollar investment into restoration of degraded land returns five US dollars The findings of the country case studies call for increased investments into the rehabilitation and restoration of degraded lands including through such institutional and policy measures as strengthening community participation for sustainable land management enhancing government effectiveness and rule of law improving access to markets and rural services and securing land tenure The assessment in this volume has been conducted at a time when there is an elevated interest in private land investments and when global efforts to achieve sustainable development objectives have intensified In this regard the results of this volume can contribute significantly to the ongoing policy debate and efforts to design strategies for achieving sustainable development goals and related efforts to address land degradation and halt biodiversity loss

Agricultural Research in Africa Lynam, John, Beintema, Nienke M., Roseboom, Johannes, Badiane, Ousmane, 2016-09-06 This book prepared by Agricultural Science and Technology Indicators ASTI which is led by IFPRI offers a comprehensive perspective on the evolution current status and future goals of agricultural research and development in Africa including analyses of the complex underlying issues and challenges involved as well as insights into how they might be overcome Agriculture in Africa south of the Sahara is at a prospective tipping point Growth has accelerated in the past decade but is unsustainable given increasing use of finite resources The yield gap in African agriculture is significant and scenarios on feeding the world's population into the future highlight the need for Africa to expand its agricultural production Agricultural Research in Africa Investing in Future Harvests discusses the need to shift to a growth path based on increased productivity as in the rest of the developing world which is essential if Africa is to increase rural incomes and compete in both domestic and international markets Such a shift ultimately requires building on evolving improvements that collectively translate to deepening rural innovation capacity
