

MEDICARE COST OF OSTEOPOROTIC FRACTURES

The National Osteoporosis Foundation (NOF) contracted with the independent actuarial firm, Milliman, to conduct an analysis of the the clinical and cost burden of fractures caused by osteoporosis. The analysis also provides insights on potential economic savings that could be realized if the rate of secondary (repeat) fractures were reduced.

In 2015,
2 MILLION
Medicare patients suffered
2.3 MILLION
fractures

Secondary Osteoporotic Fractures Are Costly.

50%
OF REPEAT FRACTURES
COULD BE AVOIDED
with cost-effective and well-tolerated treatments²

Tools to Prevent Secondary Osteoporotic Fractures Are Not Being Used.

ONLY 9%
RECEIVED A BMD TEST

Based on female Medicare fee-for-service beneficiaries receiving a bone mineral density (bmd) test within six months following a new osteoporotic fracture

MOST WITH FRACTURES GO UNTREATED³

Model Care
Coordination
Practices Are Not Widely Utilized³

Preventing Secondary Osteoporotic Fractures Yields Big Medicare Savings.

REDUCING SECONDARY FRACTURES

BY JUST 20%
COULD SAVE $1.2B³

SUMMARY: 54 million Americans age 50 and over either already have or are at risk of osteoporosis. Osteoporosis-related bone fractures are responsible for more hospitalizations than heart attacks, strokes and breast cancer combined. As the nation ages, this problem will continue to worsen, exacting a major economic and human toll on Medicare beneficiaries, their caregivers and taxpayers. Yet the problem is rarely a focus of public discussion or policymaker priority. Preventing secondary osteoporotic fractures may result in significant Medicare savings while at the same time, reduce suffering for older Americans.

<sup>1</sup> The additional cost in the 360-day period following a second fracture to Medicare for the 307,000 beneficiaries who suffered a second fracture in the 2-3 years after an initial osteoporotic fracture and survived for at least 360 days after the second fracture.

<sup>3</sup> The report concludes that reducing between 5 percent and 30 percent of these "secondary" fractures in 2015 could have reduced Medicare fee-for-service (FFS) spending by $100 million to $1.2 billion over a following period that lasted up to 2 to 3 years after a new osteoporotic fracture.
