Mum Strikes Back Taboo Relations:

Motherhoods, Markets and Consumption Stephanie O'Donohoe, Margaret Hogg, Pauline Maclaran, Lydia Martens, Lorna Stevens, 2013-10-30 It takes more than a baby to make a mother and mothers make more than babies Bringing together a range of international studies Motherhoods Markets and Consumption examines how marketing and consumer culture constructs particular images of what mothers are what they should care about and how they should behave exploring how women's use of consumer goods and services shapes how they mother as well as how they are seen and judged by others Combining personal accounts from many mothers with different theoretical perspectives this book explores How advertising media and consumer culture contribute to myths and stereotypes concerning good and bad mothers How particular consumer choices are bound up with women's identities as mothers The role of consumption for women entering different phases of their mothering lives such as pregnancy early motherhood and the empty nest

Bodies of Violence Lauren B. Wilcox, 2015 According to conventional international relations theory states or groups make war and in doing so kill and injure people that other states are charged with protecting While it sees the perpetrators of violence as rational actors it views those who are either protected or killed by this violence as mere bodies ahistorical humans who breathe suffer and die but have no particular political agency In its rationalist variants IR theory only sees bodies as inert objects Constructivist theory argues that subjects are formed through social relations but leaves the bodies of subjects outside of politics as brute facts According to Wilcox such limited thinking about bodies and violence is not just wrong but also limits the capacity of IR to theorize the meaning of political violence By contrast to rationalist and constructivist theory feminist theory sees subjectivity and the body as inextricably linked This book argues that IR needs to rethink its approach to bodies as having particular political meaning in their own right For example bodies both direct violent acts violence in drone warfare for example and are constituted by practices that manage violence for example scrutiny of persons as bodies through biometric technologies and body scanners The book also argues that violence is more than a strategic action of rational actors as in rationalist theories or a destructive violation of community laws and norms as in liberal and constructivist theories Because IR theorizes bodies as outside of politics it cannot see how violence can be understood as a creative force for shaping the limits of how we understand ourselves as political subjects as well as forming the boundaries of our political communities By engaging with feminist theories of embodiment and violence Bodies of Violence provides a more nuanced treatment of the nexus of bodies subjects and violence than currently exists in the field of international relations

Mothering Daughters Susan C. Greenfield, 2002 The rise of the novel and of the ideal nuclear family was no mere coincidence argues Susan C Greenfield in this fascinating look at the construction of modern maternity The rise of the novel and of the ideal nuclear family was no mere coincidence argues Susan C Greenfield in this fascinating look at the construction of modern maternity Many historians maintain that the eighteenth century witnessed the idealization of the caring loving mother Here Greenfield charts how the newly emerging novels of the period in their increasing feminization responded to and helped shape that image often infusing it with more nuance and flexibility By the end of the eighteenth century she notes novels by women about missing mothers and their suffering daughters abounded Even as the political implications of the novels vary the books uniformly insist on the tenacity of the mother daughter bond despite the mother's absence Exploring the historically contingent assumptions about maternal care that informed writers during this period Greenfield argues that women's novels helped construct the story of mother love and loss that psychoanalysis would soon inherit

The Sociogony Mark P. Worrell, 2018-11-26 The Sociogony re-examines the social ontology of what Durkheim calls social facts in the light of critical and progressive hostilities to the facticity of facts and the necessity of moral absolutes in the shift from bourgeois liberalism to a neoliberal global order The introduction offers a wide-ranging rumination on the concept of the absolute after its apparent downfall the chapter on facts turns the problem of external authority on its head and the chapter dealing with the sociogony situates facts in a process of generation rule and decay Drawing heavily on the works of Hegel Marx Weber and Durkheim the resulting synthesis is what the author refers to as a Marxheimian Social Theory that offers a new map and a stable ontology for the homeless mind
