Vowel Prosthesis in Romance Rodney Sampson,2009-10-29 This book presents for the first time an in depth historical account of vowel prosthesis in the Romance languages Vowel prosthesis is a change which involves the appearance of a non etymological vowel at the beginning of a word a familiar example is the initial e which appears in the development of Latin sperare to Spanish esperar and French esp rer to hope Despite its widespread incidence in the Romance languages it has remained poorly studied In his wide ranging comparative coverage Professor Sampson identifies three main categories of vowel prosthesis that have occurred and explores in detail their historical trajectory and the relationship between them The presentation draws freely throughout on the rich philological materials available from Romance and brings to light various unexpected changes in the productive use of prosthesis through time For example in French and Italian which is Tuscan based one category of prosthesis became well established in the early Middle Ages only to lose productivity and subsequently become moribund With its extensive use of empirical data and findings from theoretical linguistics the book offers a thorough and revealing account of a fascinating chapter in the phonological history of Romance

Coarticulation and Sound Change in Romance Daniel Recasens, 2014-04-15 This volume should be of great interest to phoneticians phonologists and both historical and cognitive linguists Using data from the Romance languages for the most part the book explores the phonetic motivation of several sound changes e g glide insertions and elisions vowel and consonant insertions elisions assimilations and dissimilations Within the framework of the DAC degree of articulatory constraint model of coarticulation it clearly demonstrates that the typology and direction of these sound changes may very largely be accounted for by the coarticulatory effects occurring between adjacent or neighbouring phonetic segments and by the degrees of articulatory constraint imposed by speakers on the production of vowels and consonants The phonetically based explanations presented here are formulated on the basis of coarticulation data from speech production and perception research carried out during the last fifty years and are complemented with data on the co occurrence of phonetic segments in lexical forms of the languages being considered Attention is also paid to the role that positional and prosodic factors play in sound change implementation as well as to the cognitive and peripheral strategies involved in segmental replacements elisions and insertions
