Meeting Students Where They Live Richard L. Curwin, 2010-04-19 The bestselling coauthor of Discipline with Dignity examines problems common to urban schools and offers comprehensive long reaching strategies for engaging troubled and hard to reach youth

Engaging Students with Poverty in Mind Eric Jensen, 2013 Drawing from research experience and real school success stories this galvanizing book explores engagement as the key factor in the academic success of economically disadvantaged students

Turning High-Poverty Schools into High-Performing Schools William H. Parrett, Ralph G. Leverett, 2012-02-08 Is it possible for high poverty schools to be high achieving Of course it is Real schools with students living in poverty do post high levels of student achievement Learn what these schools do to help students succeed and how you and your school can adopt the same practices no matter what socio economic climate students live in Lessons learned and practical advice from seven of these high performing high poverty HP HP schools along with hundreds of others that have been the subject of intensive research are the focus of this book Authors William Parrett and Kathleen Budge have synthesized the research studied the schools in depth and show you critical components that set these institutions apart from their struggling peers After setting the context by examining poverty and its stunning effects on students the authors then zero in on what HP HP schools stopped doing or eliminated and what they started doing or improved on in three key areas of performance Building leadership capacity Fostering a safe healthy and supportive learning environment and Focusing on student professional and system learning Principals teacher leaders and district leaders can benefit from the real world examples and practical guidelines all based on research and experience Rather than suggesting a one size fits all approach the authors acknowledge the unique context of individual schools and urge readers to engage in self assessment reflection and coordinated action to learn together and lead together with rubrics and planning templates provided to guide the process The reality is that any school willing to refocus its efforts can become a high performing school

Revitalizing Education in the Big Cities Edgar Leroy Morphet, David L. Jessor, Arthur P. Ludka, 1972 Successful Schools and Educational Accountability Kenneth K. Wong, Anna Nicotera, 2007 This text in AB's new Educational Leadership series from Peabody College discusses how the standards and accountability movement has affected teachers and school leaders and illustrates its impact on learning. This text stands out due to authorship and breadth of research used. It was developed by the leading scholars in educational accountability as part of a series from one of the leading Schools of Education in the world. No other text discusses policy and practice in such a systematic way with such a strong basis in current research.

Changing Urban Education Clarence Nathan Stone, 1998 With critical issues like desegregation and funding facing our schools, dissatisfaction with public education has reached a new high. Teachers decry inadequate resources while critics claim educators are more concerned with job security than effective teaching. Though urban education has reached crisis proportions, contending players have difficulty agreeing on a common program of action. This book tells why Changing Urban Education confronts the prevailing naivete in school reform by examining the factors that shape, reinforce, or undermine reform efforts. Edited by one of the nation's leading urban scholars, it examines forces for change and resistance in urban education and proposes that the barrier to reform can only be overcome by understanding how schools fit into the broader political contexts of their cities. Much of the problem with our schools lies with the reluctance of educators to recognize the profoundly political character of public education. The contributors show how urban political contexts vary widely with factors like racial composition, the role of the teachers union, and relations between cities and surrounding metropolitan areas. Presenting case studies of original field research in Baltimore, Chicago, Houston, and six other urban areas, they consider how resistance to desegregation and the concentration of the poor in central urban areas affect education and they suggest how cities can build support for reform through the involvement of business and other community players. By demonstrating the complex interrelationship between urban education and politics, this book shows schools to be not just places for educating children but also major employers and large spenders of tax dollars. It also introduces the concept of civic capacity, the ability of educators and non-educators to work together on common goals, and suggests that this key issue must be addressed before education can be improved. Changing Urban Education makes it clear to educators that the outcome of reform efforts depends heavily on their political context, as it reminds political scientists that education is a major part of the urban mix. While its prognosis is not entirely optimistic, it sets forth important guidelines that cannot be ignored if our schools are to successfully prepare children for the future.

Illinois Education, 1967 Children of the Cities Jo Boyden, Pat Holden, 1991 Nearly half of the world's population lives in towns. Some 400 million children live in Third World cities alone. Their poverty and struggle for existence are paralleled in the homelessness, unemployment, and exposure to drugs faced by so many young people in industrialized countries. Children of the Cities is a thorough account of the abuse and exploitation experienced by the urban young worldwide. It is critical of policy makers who have neglected the needs of your people Yet it also highlights the strengths of urban children and the positive developments in child welfare Drawing on evidence from the children themselves this book describes what life in the city is like the work they do their leisure time schooling home life health and nutrition and their new vulnerability to the AIDS epidemic and drug culture It looks at the physical hardships that face so many of them and the emotional and social consequences of urban life Back Cover

How Schools Improve Per Dalin, 1994 Educational reform is a complex and lengthy process involving individuals at all levels of the system A considerable amount is known about the management of educational change in developed countries but there has previously been little research to guide those in less developed countries The How Schools Improve study is based on research carried out by the World Bank and IMTEC from 1987 to 1992 which was set up specifically to learn from reform successes rather than failures in order to provide clear advice for policy and practice The report is based on detailed study of 31 primary schools in Colombia Ethiopia and Bangladesh all placed in their regional and national contexts This fieldwork is presented in three chapters each of which summarizes the findings in one of these countries There are details of the process of change in the form of case studies for particular schools and discussions of prospects for the future The book goes on to analyse the findings in the field and to use this analysis in providing a programme for the implementation of reform and its development How Schools Improve is an essential guide to policy planning and implementation It will be of enormous interest and value internationally to academics head teachers and administrators who are involved in school improvement Resources in Education ,1996 Challenges to Education
