24/7 Jarice Hanson, 2007-07-30 Just as the automobile radically changed people's lives at the beginning of the 20th century so too has the revolution in online services including blogging podcasting videogaming shopping and social networking and cell phone use changed our lives at the turn of the 21st century In addition many other services activities and devices including the Palm Pilot the BlackBerry the iPod digital cameras and cell cameras have been made possible by the combination of these two technologies Whereas the automobile allowed people for the first time to work in cities and live comfortably in the suburbs extending the long commute beyond the limits

previously circumscribed by public transportation the Internet and cell phone allow us to interact with others from around the world or a few hundred miles from where we work or live giving rise to the telecommuting phenomenon and allowing us to stay in touch with friends and families in the new virtual environment As Hanson demonstrates in her new book these technologies enable us to work and play 24 7 anytime anywhere What does this mean for us as individuals and for society as a whole What are the social implications of this technological revolution that we have witnessed in the short span of about 20 years Do people of different generations use these technologies in the same ways or do they adopt them to support their communication habits formed at different times of their lives How does the illusion of control provided by these technologies affect the way we think about what is meaningful in our lives Hanson examines the wide ranging impact of this change How do individuals posting their viewpoints on the Internet affect democracy Is it possible to ever completely prevent identity theft over the Internet How permanent is information stored on the Internet or on a hard drive Do cell phones change the way people think about privacy or the way they communicate with others Does email Do videogames teach new social principles Do cell phones and the Internet change traditional communication behaviors and attitudes Hanson discusses these crucial issues and explores to what extent individuals do have control and she assesses how social and governmental services are responding to or running from the problems posed by these new technologies

A Social Strategy Mikolaj Jan Piskorski, 2016-02-23 What people get out of social media and how businesses can get more out of it Almost no one had heard of social media a decade ago but today websites such as Facebook Twitter and LinkedIn have more than 1 billion users and account for almost 25 percent of Internet use Practically overnight social media seems indispensable to our lives from friendship and dating to news and business What makes social media so different from traditional media Answering that question is the key to making social media work for any business argues Miko aj Piskorski one of the world s leading experts on the business of social media In A Social Strategy he provides the most convincing answer yet one backed by original research data and case studies from companies such as Nike and American Express Drawing on his analysis of proprietary data from social media sites Piskorski argues that the secret of successful ones is that they allow people to fulfill social needs that either can t be met offline or can be met only at much greater cost This insight provides the key to how companies can leverage social platforms to create a sustainable competitive advantage Companies need to help people interact with each other before they will promote products to their friends or help companies in other ways Done right a company s social media should benefit customers and the firm Piskorski calls this a social strategy and he describes how companies such as Yelp and Zynga have done it Groundbreaking and important A Social Strategy provides not only a story and data driven explanation for the explosion of social media but also an invaluable concrete road map for any company that wants to tap the marketing potential of this remarkable phenomenon
