Structured Literacy Jacquelyn Chovanes, Emily Sharp, 2025-03-04 This book follows the explicit instructional sequence noted by educational researchers as the most effective means of teaching students new skills and content It begins by offering a rationale for why students should be interested in learning about structured literacy and how they can use it in their teaching practice It provides background knowledge needed to contextualize the book's content Then it takes learners step by step through the process of assessing students and creating effective structured literacy instructional routines Detailed information about how to implement structured literacy instruction and intervention at all three tiers is provided This textbook will be a unique and valuable addition to the extant literature because thus far no book has approached the topic in this way There are books about structured literacy that include examples of learning activities Spear Swerling et al 2021 but there is no single comprehensive textbook that can be readily picked up and used by college instructors and their students This book is not a compendium of the research nor is it a program with scripted lessons It is a comprehensive textbook that uniquely provides the background information on structured literacy and the methods related content needed to successfully prepare preservice teachers to assess plan and implement structured literacy instruction and intervention The book is designed to be used in the context of a college level one or two semester undergraduate or graduate literacy course Currently no similar textbook exists This book defines structured literacy describes the history of reading research and the science of reading Then the book provides explicit information about how students learn to read and the most effective methods and strategies teachers can use to teach reading to all students Next the book provides detailed and specific instruction in specific structured literacy practices to use at Tiers 1 and 2 Intensive assessment diagnostic and instructional strategies for learners who require individualized Tier 3 intervention are thoroughly explained Many detailed examples of specific instructional routines and corrective procedures are included along with reproducibles that support lesson planning implementation and assessment At the end of each chapter discussion questions and suggestions for hands on learning activities are provided Preparing pre service teachers in the whys and hows of structured literacy instruction and intervention allows them to teach reading effectively according to current understanding of the science of reading Teachers prepared with this knowledge base will be able to use the resources in this book to create additional materials and adapt materials from any literacy program to individualize instruction according to the needs of their students This book will be a valuable addition to any college level general or special education reading methods course The instructional routines taught in the book are designed to be accessible to students with and without disabilities Effective reading instruction such as the kind described in this book increases educational equity for students of color and English learners Suggestions for differentiating instruction based upon individual student needs are provided

Evidence-Based Practices for Supporting Individuals with Autism Spectrum Disorder Laura C. Chezan, Katie Wolfe, Erik Drasgow, 2022-08-10 This book provides resources for the identification selection implementation and evaluation of evidence based practices to promote positive outcomes for learners with autism spectrum disorder ASD across the lifespan and to enhance their quality of life The decision making process for identifying and selecting evidence based practices to address the academic behavioral and social needs of this population of learners is discussed followed by a systematic description of the implementation and evaluation of evidence based practices within the context of ongoing assessment and data based decision making The authors present evidence based training models for solving the common dilemmas of selecting implementing and evaluating evidence based practices Finally the book underlines the importance of developing collaborative partnerships with families and other professionals to better address the needs of learners with autism spectrum disorder The Goldilocks Map: A classroom teacher's quest to evaluate 'brain-based' teaching advice Andrew C. Watson, 2021-05-03

In the last 20 years the cognitive sciences have revealed fresh surprising and useful insights into how and why our students learn Teachers can now draw on psychology and neuroscience research to supplement reconsider even overturn our traditions and training To use this research most wisely teachers must find our way to an elusive Goldilocks Zone Instead of resisting all research based guidance we should be ready to take it to heart even when it challenges both our training and conventional wisdom Instead of accepting all research based guidance we should be ready to reject it emphatically especially the hyped up edu fads that exaggerate and misinterpret psychology findings How can we get this Goldilocks balance just right This book offers a specific practical quest map to discover just such a balance By critically examining the source the research and ourselves teachers can develop the skills necessary to be effective research skeptics Written by a teacher with 18 years in the classroom and 13 years studying neuroscience and psychology The Goldilocks Map transforms brain research from a daunting monologue into an approachable exciting and lively conversation Reading Like a Historian Avishag Reisman, 2011

Enthusiasm about the instructional potential of primary sources dates to the late 19th century and has been echoed recently in the work of literacy experts historians and educational psychologists Yet no extended intervention study has been undertaken to test the effectiveness of primary source instruction in real history classrooms This study with 236 eleventh grade students in five San Francisco high schools represented the first large scale extended curriculum intervention in disciplinary reading in an urban district The Reading Like a Historian RLH curriculum constituted a radical departure from traditional textbook driven instruction by using a new activity structure the Document Based Lesson in which students used background knowledge and disciplinary reading strategies to interrogate and then reconcile historical accounts from multiple texts A quasi experiment control design measured the effects of a six month intervention on four dimensions 1 students historical thinking 2 their ability to transfer historical thinking strategies to contemporary issues 3 their mastery of factual knowledge and 4 their growth in general reading comprehension MANCOVA analysis yielded significant main effects for the treatment condition on all four outcome measures Qualitative analyses of videotaped classroom lessons were conducted to determine the frequency and nature of whole class text based discussion Only nine whole class text based discussions were identified in over 100 videotaped classroom lessons despite the presence of instructional materials explicitly designed to support student discussion of debatable historical questions Analysis of teacher and student participation suggests a relationship between active teacher facilitation that reviews background knowledge and poses direct questions about texts and higher levels of student argumentation This dissertation is structured as three free standing papers each of which addresses one aspect of the larger study In the first paper I discuss the design of the quasi experimental study and report quantitative findings In the second paper I locate teacher facilitation of whole class historical discussion in the literature on classroom discourse and I propose a developmental framework for analyzing student historical argumentation in classroom discussion In the third and final paper I discuss the theoretical underpinnings of the intervention curriculum and offer two examples to illustrate the structure of the Document Based Lesson

Reading Instruction in America Barbara Ruth Peltzman,2015-10-02 The diversity of student populations in the United States presents educators with many challenges To provide effective reading instruction for the individual student teachers must understand the enormous variety of reading methods and materials that exist and make independent decisions based on their students particular needs Research indicates that educators are often influenced by reading instruction fads that quickly fade making it more challenging to develop a repertoire of teaching strategies in which a teacher may have confidence This book examines a variety of reading methods used in American schools from the 19th to the 21st century and the literature promoting or critiquing them to help teachers become informed decision makers and better meet the needs of students
