The study found that banks use blog, Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn to conduct their marketing activities in the manner of brand promotion and persuasion of customers to patronize them, and these activities enhance organisational efficiency of banks. The study discovered that Facebook has positive and significant effect on conversion rate, web traffic, and customer engagement. The study revealed that Twitter has positive and significant effect on conversion rate, web traffic, and customer engagement. The study found that LinkedIn has positive but insignificant effect on conversion rate and customer engagement but negative and insignificant effect on web traffic. The study also found that trust moderates and has strong positive and significant effect on social media marketing and organisational efficiency of banks. The study concludes that as banks use blogs, Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn to create awareness about their products and services on the internet, their conversion rates, web traffic, and customer engagement are significantly and positively boosted. The study therefore recommends that bank managers should use blog, Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn to their advantage by encouraging bank staff and not just the marketing department to participate in social media marketing, which in turn covers more ground for the enhancement of conversion rate, web traffic, and customer engagement, leading to organisational efficiency of banks.
