Housing Affordability: A New Dataset Nina Biljanovska, Mr. Chenxu Fu, Ms. Deniz O Igan, 2023-12 The rapid increase in house prices in the past few years including during the COVID 19 pandemic raises concerns about housing affordability The price to income ratio is a widely used indicator of affordability but does not take into account important factors such as the cost of financing The aim of this paper is to construct a measure of housing affordability that takes these factors into account for a large set of countries and long period of time The resulting dataset covers an unbalanced panel of 40 countries over the period from 1970Q1 to 2021Q4 For each country the index measures the extent to which a median income household can qualify for a mortgage loan to purchase an average priced home To gauge the performance of the constructed indices we compare them to other readily available measures of affordability and examine the evolution of the indices over time to understand the relevant drivers including in a regression analysis to assess the extent to which government housing programs could contribute to improving affordability

The Pricing-Out Phenomenon in the U.S. Housing Market Francesco Beraldi, Mr. Yunhui Zhao, 2023-01-06 The COVID 19 pandemic further extended the multi year housing boom in advanced economies and emerging markets alike against massive monetary easing during the pandemic In this paper we analyze the pricing out phenomenon in the U S residential housing market due to higher house prices associated with monetary easing We first set up a stylized general equilibrium model and show that although monetary easing decreases the mortgage payment burden it would raise house prices lower housing affordability for first time homebuyers and increase housing wealth inequality between first time and repeat homebuyers We then use the U S household level data to quantify the effect of the house price change on housing affordability relative to that of the interest rate change We find evidence of the pricing out effect for all homebuyers moreover we find that the pricing out effect is stronger for first time homebuyers than for repeat homebuyers The paper highlights the importance of accounting for general equilibrium effects and distributional implications of monetary policy while assessing housing affordability It also calls for complementing monetary easing with well targeted policy measures that can boost housing affordability particularly for first time and lower income households Such measures are also needed during aggressive monetary tightening given that the fall in house prices may be insufficient or too slow to fully offset the immediate adverse impact of higher rates on housing affordability
