The Parent Trap Nate G. Hilger,2023-04-04 How parents have been set up to fail and why helping them succeed is the key to achieving a fair and prosperous society Few people realize that raising children is the single largest industry in the United States Yet this vital work receives little political support and its primary workers parents labor in isolation If they ask for help they are made to feel inadequate there is no centralized organization to represent their interests and there is virtually nothing spent on research and development to help them achieve their goals It s almost as if parents are set up to fail and the result is lost opportunities that limit children s success and make us all worse off In The Parent Trap Nate Hilger combines cutting edge social science research revealing historical case studies and on the ground investigation to recast parenting as the hidden crucible of inequality Parents are expected not only to care for their children but to help them develop the skills they will need to thrive in today s socioeconomic reality but most parents including even the most caring parents on the planet are not trained in skill development and lack the resources to get help How do we fix this The solution Hilger argues is to ask less of parents not more America should consider child development a public investment with a monumental payoff We need a program like Medicare call it Familycare to drive this investment To make it happen parents need to organize to wield their political power on behalf of children who will always be the largest bloc of disenfranchised people in this country The Parent Trap exposes the true costs of our society s unrealistic expectations around parenting and lays out a profoundly hopeful blueprint for reform Hearings United States. Policy and Choice William J. Congdon,Jeffrey R. Kling,Sendhil Mullainathan,2011-04-01 Traditional public finance provides a powerful framework for policy analysis but it relies on a model of human behavior that the new science of behavioral economics increasingly calls into question In Policy and Choice economists William Congdon Jeffrey Kling and Sendhil Mullainathan argue that public finance not only can incorporate many lessons of behavioral economics but also can serve as a solid foundation from which to apply insights from psychology to questions of economic policy The authors revisit the core questions of public finance armed with a richer perspective on human behavior They do not merely apply findings from psychology to specific economic problems instead they explore how psychological factors actually reshape core concepts in public finance such as moral hazard deadweight loss and incentives Part one sets the stage for integrating behavioral economics into public finance by interpreting the evidence from psychology and developing a framework for applying it to questions in public finance In part two the authors apply that framework to specific topics in public finance including social insurance externalities and public goods income support and redistribution and taxation In doing so the authors build a unified analytical approach that encompasses both traditional policy levers such as taxes and subsidies and more psychologically informed instruments The net result of this innovative approach is a fully behavioral public finance an integration of psychology and the economics of the public sector that is explicit systematic rigorous and realistic National Lampoon's White Bread Snaps Contemporary Books, inc,1995 Snapping is a phenomenon among today s hip street smart urban youth inspiring the bestselling book Snaps Now National Lampoon s White Bread is a celebration of the art of verbally humiliating opponents as only an upper middle class 3 8 grade point average retainer wearing mama s boy can Roll up your sleeves and settle differences with a battle of wits not lawyers If I Could Just Snap Out of It, Don't You Think I
